Nuclear Weapons and Conflict Transformation Saira Khan, 2008-09-09 This new volume explores what the acquisition of nuclear weapons means for the life of a protracted conflict using the case study of the conflict between India and Pakistan

Conflict Resolution and Status Céline Francis, 2011 The dispute between Georgia and Abkhazia is not a conflict of equals In international conflicts adversaries may differ de facto on the ground in terms of population territory and capability among other things As internationally recognized states however they have equal de jure status and fears that inviting the other side to the negotiating table might be construed as recognition for example rarely intrude The question of status does pose problems however when a conflict is being fought between a recognized state and an unrecognized entity and these problems may contribute to increase the intractability of such conflicts This study explores how and to what extent the difference in status between a sovereign state and an unrecognized entity hinders conflict resolution activities Based on intensive fieldwork and unedited negotiation material the book provides an in depth analysis of the negotiations informal dialogues and grassroots activities that took place in Abkhazia and Georgia between 1989 and 2008

Unionists, Loyalists, and Conflict Transformation in Northern Ireland Lee A. Smithey, 2011-08-31 In Northern Ireland a once seemingly intractable conflict is in a state of transformation Lee A Smithey offers a grassroots view of that transformation drawing on interviews documentary evidence and extensive field research He offers essential models for how ethnic and communal based conflicts can shift from violent confrontation toward peaceful co existence Smithey focuses particularly on Protestant unionists and loyalists in Northern Ireland who maintain varying degrees of commitment to the Protestant faith the Crown and and Ulster British identity He argues that antagonistic collective identities in ethno-political conflict can become less polarizing as partisans adopt new conflict strategies and means of expressing identity Consequently the close relationship between collective identity and collective action is a crucial element of conflict transformation Smithey closely examines attempts in Protestant unionist loyalist communities and organizations to develop more constructive means of expressing collective identity and pursuing political agendas that can help improve community relations Key leaders and activists have begun to reframe shared narratives and identities making possible community support for negotiations demilitarization and political cooperation while also diminishing out group polarization As Smithey shows this kind of shift in strategy and collective vision is the heart of conflict transformation and the challenges and opportunities faced by grassroots unionists and loyalists in Northern Ireland can prove instructive for other regions of intractable conflict

Early Warning and Conflict Prevention Klaas van Walraven, 2024-01-15 The end of the cold war did not begin an era of world peace The forces of marginalization civil war and genocide have uprooted whole societies in Africa the Balkans and the Caucasus In fact the end of superpower competition means that the world now lacks external actors powerful enough to intervene successfully in local conflicts The early 1990s saw the beginning of a search for possibilities for conflict prevention This work is one of the first to set the analysis of early warning and conflict prevention firmly in the context of the changes and continuities in the structures of post Cold War politics Early Warning and Conflict Prevention proceeds from the position that sufficient early warning could enable governments and international organizations to intervene at an early stage rather than waiting until disputes erupt into violence It analyses the theoretical and practical complexities of timely warning and effective response in conflict resolution It also investigates the extent to which conflict prevention has become a concrete element in the policies of governments non governmental organizations and international organizations The result of an international symposium on early warning and conflict prevention in November 1996 this work examines this significant issue in international relations within the unique political framework of post Cold War developments making it an important resource for academics policymakers government officials and others interested in the present and future state of conflict resolution

Transforming conflict through social and economic development Sandra Buchanan, 2016-05-16 Transforming conflict through social and economic development examines lessons learned from the Northern Ireland and Border Counties conflict transformation process through social and economic development and their consequent impacts and implications for practice and policymaking with a range of functional recommendations produced for other regions emerging from and seeking to transform violent conflict It provides for the first time a comprehensive assessment of the region's transformation activity largely amongst grassroots actors enabled by a number of specific funding programmes namely the International Fund for Ireland Peace I II and III and INTERREG I II and IIIA These programmes have been responsible for a huge increase in grassroots practice which to date has attracted virtually no academic analysis this book seeks to fill this gap In focusing on the politics of the socioeconomic activities that underpinned the elite negotiations of the peace process key theoretical transformation concepts are firstly explored followed by an examination of the social and economic context of Northern Ireland and the border counties The three programmes and their impacts are then assessed before considering what policy lessons can be learned and what recommendations can be made for practice This is underpinned by a range of semi structured interviews and the author's own experience as a project promoter through these programmes in the border counties for more than a decade The book will be essential reading for students practitioners and policymakers in the fields of peace and conflict studies conflict transformation peacebuilding post agreement reconstruction and the political economy of conflict and those interested in contemporary developments in the Northern Ireland peace process From Reaction to Conflict Prevention Fen Osler Hampson, David Malone, 2002 Contributors in public policy politics international affairs development conflict management and peace studies discuss the practical challenges of conflict prevention within the UN system considering the causes and dynamics of war tools being developed to predict the eruption of conflict and what is being done to move from reaction to prevention of conflict They touch on areas such as measuring the societal impact of war a systems approach to mitigating violent conflict and electoral assistance and democratization Hampson teaches international affairs at Carleton University Canada Malone is president of the International Peace Academy Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR The G8, the United Nations, and Conflict Prevention Radoslava N. Terrorism: Bridging the Gap with Peace and Conflict Studies Ioannis Tellidis, Harmonie Toros, 2016-01-08 This book opens up the discussion of the interrelation between terrorism studies and peace and conflict studies The aim is to examine the instances and circumstances under which both fields can benefit from each other Even though it is often accepted that terrorism is a form of political violence it is also quite frequent that research on the topic is dismissed when it is approached with conflict analysis frames More importantly policy approaches continue to inhibit obstruct and reject frameworks that are concerned with the transformation and resolution of terrorist conflicts partly because they see the state as the ultimate referent object to be secured At the same time peace and conflict studies seem to be excessively focused on problem solving approaches which overemphasise the role of parity during negotiations and misdiagnose the distribution of power both within conflicts as well as within conflict management resolution and or transformation approaches This book was published as a special issue of Critical Studies on Terrorism
