Joseph S. Wood

New England Village Series:

The New England Village Joseph S. Wood, 2002-09-24 New England colonists Wood argues brought with them a cultural predisposition toward dispersed settlements within agricultural spaces called towns and villages Rarely compact in form these communities did however encourage individual landholding By the early nineteenth century town centers where meetinghouses stood began to develop into the center villages we recognize today Just as rural New England began its economic decline Wood shows romantics associated these proto urban places with idealized colonial village communities as the source of both village form and commercial success

Music for the Common Man Elizabeth B. Crist, 2009-01-12 In the 1930s Aaron Copland began to write in an accessible style he described as imposed simplicity Works like El Sal n M xico Billy the Kid Lincoln Portrait and Appalachian Spring feature a tuneful idiom that brought the composer unprecedented popular success and came to define an American sound Yet the cultural substance of that sound the social and political perspective that might be heard within these familiar pieces has until now been largely overlooked While it has long been acknowledged that Copland subscribed to leftwing ideals Music for the Common Man is the first sustained attempt to understand some of Copland's best known music in the context of leftwing social political and cultural currents of the Great Depression and Second World War Musicologist Elizabeth Crist argues that Copland's politics never merely accorded with mainstream New Deal liberalism wartime patriotism and Communist Party aesthetic policy but advanced a progressive vision of American society and culture Copland's music can be heard to accord with the political tenets of progressivism in the 1930s and 40s including a fundamental sensitivity toward those less fortunate support of multiethnic pluralism belief in social democracy and faith that America's past could be put in service of a better future Crist explores how his works wrestle with the political complexities and cultural contradictions of the era by investing symbols of America the West folk song patriotism or the people with progressive social ideals Much as been written on the relationship between politics and art in the 1930s and 40s but very little on concert music of the era Music for the Common Man offers fresh insights on familiar pieces and the political context in which they emerged

Landscapes of Privilege Nancy Duncan, 2004-02-24 James and Nancy Duncan look at how the aesthetics of physical landscapes are fully enmeshed in producing the American class system Focusing on an archetypal upper class American suburb Bedford in Westchester County NY they show how the physical presentation of a place carries with it a range of markers of inclusion and exclusion

The Making of Urban America John William Reps, 1965 This comprehensive survey of urban growth in America has become a standard work in the field From the early colonial period to the First World War John Reps explores to what extent city planning has been rooted in the nation's tradition showing the extent of European influence on early communities Illustrated by over three hundred reproductions of maps plans and panoramic views this book presents hundreds of American cities and the unique factors affecting their development

Conforti, 2003-01-14 Say New England and you likely conjure up an image in the mind of your listener the snowy woods or stone wall of a Robert Frost poem perhaps or that quintessential icon of the region the idyllic white village Such images remind us that as Joseph Conforti notes a region is not just a territory on the ground It is also a place in the imagination This ambitious work investigates New England as a cultural invention tracing the region's changing identity across more than three centuries Incorporating insights from history literature art material culture and geography it shows how succeeding generations of New Englanders created and broadcast a powerful collective identity for their region through narratives about its past Whether these stories were told in the writings of Frost or Harriet Beecher Stowe enacted in historical pageants or at colonial revival museums or conveyed in the pages of a geography textbook or Yankee magazine New Englanders used them to sustain their identity revising them as needed to respond to the shifting regional landscape The New England

Gazetteer John Hayward, 1857 In the New England Fashion Catherine E. Kelly, 2018-08-06 In the first half of the nineteenth century rural New England society underwent a radical transformation as the traditional household economy gave way to an encroaching market culture Drawing on a wide array of diaries letters and published writings by women in this society Catherine E Kelly describes their attempts to make sense of the changes in their world by elaborating values connected to rural life In her hands the narratives reveal the dramatic ways female lives were reshaped during the antebellum period and the women's own contribution to those developments Equally important she demonstrates how these writings afford a fuller understanding of the capitalist transformation of the countryside and the origins of the Northern middle class Provincial women exalted rural life for its republican simplicity while condemning that of the city for its aristocratic pretension The idyllic nature of the former was ascribed to the financial independence that the household economy had long provided those in the farming community Kelly examines how the juxtaposition of rural virtue to urban vice served as a cautionary defense against the new realities of the capitalist market society She finds that women responded to the transition to capitalism by upholding a set of values which point toward the creation of a provincial bourgeoisie
