The Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics: Context and concepts Célestin Monga, Justin Yifu Lin, 2015 For a long time economic research on Africa was not seen as a profitable venture intellectually or professionally few researchers in top ranked institutions around the world chose to become experts in the field This was understandable the reputation of Africa centered economic research was not enhanced by the well known limitations of economic data across the continent

Moreover development economics itself was not always fashionable and the broader discipline of economics has had its ups and downs and has been undergoing a major identity crisis because it failed to predict the Great Recession Times have changed many leading researchers including a few Nobel laureates have taken the subject of Africa and economics seriously enough to devote their expertise and creativity to it They have been amply rewarded the richness complexities and subtleties of African societies civilizations rationalities and ways of living have helped renew the humanities and the social sciences and economics in particular to the point that the continent has become the next major intellectual frontier to researchers from around the world In collecting some of the most authoritative statements about the science of economics and its concepts in the African context this handbook the first of two volumes opens up the diverse acuity of commentary on exciting topics and in the process challenges and stimulates the quest for knowledge Wide ranging in its scope themes language and approaches this volume explores examines and assesses economic thinking on Africa and Africa's contribution to the discipline The editors bring a set of powerful resources to this endeavor most notably a team of internationally renowned economists whose diverse viewpoints are complemented by the perspectives of philosophers political scientists and anthropologists

No Miracle Mitchell Wigdor, 2016-05-23 No Miracle examines the role of institutions in bridging the digital divide between rich and poor nations and what that means for the country's integration into a global economy Shifting the debate from whether institutions are important to economic development to which institutions are important and how to build them Mitchell Wigdor expertly addresses fundamental shortcomings in the existing development literature by identifying specific institutions that mediate the relationship between Information and Communications Technology ICT and economic growth In doing so he challenges those concerned with development to shift their gaze from whether institutions are important to economic development to which institutions might be the focus of government efforts and how to build them Detailed case studies of the economic development strategies of Singapore and Malaysia from 1960 demonstrate that institution building and economic development may be as much about process as the specific policies governments pursue Written in accessible non technical language this book should be read by everyone concerned with economic growth both in less economically developed countries and the more prosperous including those in government international organizations NGOs universities policy makers and the private sector
