Nutrient Uptake And Cycling In Forest Ecosystems Cec Iufro Symposium Halmstad Sweden June 7 10 1993:

Nutrient Uptake and Cycling in Forest Ecosystems L.O. Nilsson,Reinhard F. Hüttl,U.T. Johansson,2012-12-06 From the research results and discussions presented in this book it becomes clear that a profound understanding of the various interrelationships of the nutritional aspects allows the implementation of specific management strategies to improve stability and productivity of forest ecosystems In particular the effects of environmental changes as related to the impacts of air pollution global change and land use on nutrient uptake and cycling processes in forest ecosystems are dealt with in detail The book is divided into six main issues and each topic contains reviews as well as selected results of recent studies

Magnesium Deficiency in Forest Ecosystems Reinhard F. Hüttl,Wolfgang W. Schaaf,2012-12-06 R F HUTTL AND W SCHAAF Brandenburg Technical University Cottbus Chair of Soil Protection and Recultivation P O Box 10 13 44 03013 Cottbus Germany The health status of forest trees and stands is determined by numerous site factors such as chemical physical and biological soil factors water supply climate weather conditions management history as well as atmospheric deposition impacts In this context the nutrient supply is an important evaluation parameter Forest trees well supplied with nutrients are more resistant to stresses that affect the forest ecosystem than other trees This is true for both biotic and abiotic influences Therefore the investigation of the so called new type forest damage was aimed at the exact determination of the health status of damaged trees When considering the complete forest ecosystem health vitality means the sustainable ability to withstand negative environmental influences and still remain stable and productive From this viewpoint an optimal nutritional status is a prerequisite for an optimal health status The term new type forest damage comprises a number of damage symptoms which have been observed in various tree species on very different sites since the mid 1970s particularly in Europe and North America However they occurred much more intensively in the 1980s Generally this forest damage was thought to be related to negative impacts of air pollutants Iron Nutrition in Soils and Plants Javier Abadía,2012-12-06 Iron is a major constituent of the earth crust However under alkaline conditions commonly found in arid and semi arid environments iron becomes unavailable to plants When plants are affected by a shortage of iron their leaves become yellow chlorotic and both plant growth and crop yield are reduced The roots of plants affected by iron deficiency may develop a series of responses directed to improve iron uptake such as increased proton excretion and iron reduction capabilities or excretion of iron chela tors called siderophores Iron deficiency affects major crops worldwide including some of major economic importance such as fruit trees and others Correction of iron deficiency is usually implemented through costly application of synthetic chelates Since these correction methods are very expensive the competitivity of farmers is often reduced and iron deficiency may become a limiting factor for the maintenance introduction or expansion of some crops In spite of the many years devoted to the study of iron deficiency the knowledge of iron deficiency in soils and plants is still fragmentary in many aspects We have only incomplete information on the processes at the molecular level that make some plant species and cultivars unable to take and utilize iron from the soil whereas other plants grow satisfactorily under the same conditions Structure and Function of Roots F. Baluska,Milada Ciamporová,Otília Gasparíková,Peter W. Barlow,2013-11-11 In 1971 the late Dr J Kolek of the Institute of Botany Bratislava organized the first International Symposium devoted exclusively to plant roots At that time perhaps only a few of the participants gathered together in Tatranska Lomnica sensed that a new era of root meetings was beginning Nevertheless it is now clear that Dr Kolek s action undertaken with his characteristic enormous enthusiasm was rather pioneering for it started a series a similar meetings Moreover what was rather exceptional at the time was the fact that the meeting was devoted to the functioning of just a single organ the root One possible reason for the unexpected success of the original perhaps naive idea of a Root Symposium might lie with the fact that plant roots have always been extremely popular as experimental material for cytologists biochemists and physiologists whishing to probe processes as diverse as cell division and solute transport Of course the connection of roots with the rest of the plant is not forgotten either This wide variety of disciplines is now coupled with the development of increasingly sophisticated experimental techniques to study some of these old problems These factors undoubtedly contribute to the necessity of continuing the tradition of the root symposia The common theme of root function gives in addition a certain unity to all these diverse activities Developing Principles and Models for Sustainable Forestry in Sweden H. Sverdrup,Ingrid Stjernquist,2013-04-18 In this book is summarized those management principles that should be valid in areas where forests continuously are used for production where biodiversity aspects are important as well as economy and productivity and where demands on soil status and water quality are set Especially the very long term aspects are emphasized and it is shown how system model thinking is used to reach the goals Biogeochemical aspects are put forward as they are very important in areas on poor bedrock with acid soils Forest vitality and stress on trees are treated as well as the importance of wildlife and their effects of browsing The balance between social and recreational demands from the society and the economical needs of the landowner is of great concern Experiences from a special area in South Sweden are presented Growth Trends in European Forests Heinrich Spiecker,Kari Mielikäinen,Michael Köhl,Jens P. tifying and quantifying possible growth trends and their spatial and temporal extent at the European level Debate on forest decline and possible climate change as well as considerations re lated to the long term supply of wood underline the importance of this project both from environmental and industrial points of view Knowledge on possible changes in growth trends is vital for the sustainable management of forest ecosystems Nutrient uptake and cycling in forest ecosystems R.
