Andrew Fuller's Theology of Revival Ryan Rindels, 2021-01-21 Revival is the arguable heartbeat of evangelical Christianity Though a theologically diverse and globally diffused phenomenon evangelicalism originated in a distinctly Calvinistic milieu Many Puritans in the seventeenth century evangelicals before the revivals emphasized the work of the Holy Spirit including the importance of personal conversion Unlike theologically Arminian proponents of revival such as Charles G Finney many Puritans and early evangelicals believed and taught that the absolute sovereignty of God was compatible with human responsibility Calvinistic Baptists in the early eighteenth century who rejected this tension declined numerically yet a new generation of pastors led their denomination through this impasse Andrew Fuller 1754 1815 defended Reformed doctrine in the Particular Baptist tradition while emphasizing the importance of human response in his preaching writing and fundraising for the Baptist Missionary Society The fruit of Fuller's ministry included growth of churches in England conversions among people groups in the Global South and the preservation of Reformed theology in a challenging Enlightenment context

Charismatic Model of the Church David Y.T. Lee, 2018-06-11 Edward Irving 1792-1834 has been known as a controversial pastor theologian in nineteenth century Britain particularly given his belief that Christ took on sinful flesh in His incarnation This book focuses on Irving's teaching of the church as the body of Christ in the power of the Holy Spirit and the eschatological community in holiness It explores Irving's emphasis upon the exalted humanity of Christ after His resurrection in relation to the church Such a Christ-centred and Spirit-empowered concept of the church has relevance to the twenty-first century church in China as the Chinese church leaders attempt to reconstruct a contemporary theology of the church

Reformed Evangelicalism and the Search for a Usable Past Ian Hugh Clary, 2020-09-07 The question of how theology shapes a Christian historian's reading of the past has been debated thoroughly in various academic periodicals Should historians recognise the role of providence in their accounts of past events Should they sympathise with their subject's theology Can objectivity be lost due to theological bias And last but not least is there a compromise of faith if one writes natural instead of supernatural history Such questions are important for understanding the historian's profession Arnold

Dallimore who trained and specialised in pastoral ministry in Canada wrote an influential biography of the revivalist George Whitefield as well as others on Charles and Susanna Wesley Edward Irving and Charles Spurgeon How did his Reformed theological perspective impact his historiography How does his work fit into larger historiographical debates concerning the nature of Christian history While other books look at Christian historiography using abstract and methodological approaches this book examines the subject precisely by looking at the life and work of an individual historian It does so by placing Dallimore in the context of being a minister in twentieth century Canada as well as his role in the development of Reformed Theology in the Anglosphere It also examines the quality of his various biographies focusing on key issues such as the nature of religious revival the problem of Christianity and slavery and the question of charismatic religious experience His study concludes by examining the relationship between the discipline and profession of church history and asking what is required for one to be considered a church historian

When the Lord Walked the Land Kenneth S. Jeffrey, 2007-03-02 Previous studies of revival have tended to approach these remarkable moments in history from either a strictly local or a sweeping national perspective In so doing they have dealt with either the detailed circumstances of a particular situation or the broader course of events These approaches however have given the incorrect impression that religious awakenings are uniform movements As a result revivals have been misunderstood as homogeneous campaigns This is the first study of the 1859 revival from a regional level in a comprehensive manner It examines this movement arguably the most significant and far reaching awakening in modern times as it appeared in the city of Aberdeen the rural hinterland of northeast Scotland and among the fishing villages and towns that stretch along the Moray Firth It reveals how far from being unvarying the 1859 revival was richly diverse It uncovers the important influence that local contexts brought to bear upon the timing and manifestation of this awakening Above all it has established the heterogeneous nature of simultaneous revival movements that appeared in the same vicinity

to the debate about the relation of religion to the modern city fills an important gap in the historiography of early nineteenth century religious life Although there is some evidence that strict doctrine led to a more restricted response to urban problems extensive local and personal variations mean that simple generalizations should be avoided Ian J Shaw argues against earlier prejudiced views and shows that high Calvinists played a vigorous and successful part in the response of early nineteenth century churches to the process of urbanization The study includes six substantial case studies of ministers and their churches in Manchester and London Four high Calvinist ministers are considered with two studies of ministers holding to an evangelical Calvinist doctrine also included to provide instructive contrasts Detailed social analysis of the congregations is based upon extensive use of manuscript and printed sources sermons and local and denominational press
