Stahl,David A. Hayes,2013-04-03 This book started with a simple idea examine models of reading instruction that have emerged during the past 20 years These models span a wide range of instruction representing a continuum from highly structured task analytic instruction to child centered and holistic instruction Each model has its own epistemology or views on how reading and instruction are to be defined The different epistemologies indicate different principles of instruction which in turn indicate different practices in the classroom Each model is also supported by a different research base In this volume leading proponents of these different models discuss their ideas about reading instruction thereby encouraging readers to make their own comparisons and contrasts The chapter authors seem to adopt the editors eclectic approach to some greater or lesser extent incorporating aspects of other models into their instruction as they see other goals Thus models of reading instruction are complex Complicating matters further is the fact that teachers hold their own models of reading which may or may not be congruent with those discussed here Although academically developed models influence college preservice and in service instruction teachers own models of reading filter the information that they take from what they learn from these perspectives By carefully examining these variables this book makes a firm contribution toward disciplined inquiry into what it means to teach reading Readings in

Machine Learning Jude W. Shavlik, Thomas Glen Dietterich, 1990 The ability to learn is a fundamental characteristic of intelligent behavior Consequently machine learning has been a focus of artificial intelligence since the beginnings of AI in the 1950s The 1980s saw tremendous growth in the field and this growth promises to continue with valuable contributions to science engineering and business Readings in Machine Learning collects the best of the published machine learning literature including papers that address a wide range of learning tasks and that introduce a variety of techniques for giving machines the ability to learn The editors in cooperation with a group of expert referees have chosen important papers that empirically study theoretically analyze or psychologically justify machine learning algorithms The papers are grouped into a dozen categories each of which is introduced by the editors
