Anthropology Martin Thomas, Amanda Harris, 2018-01-29 The origins of anthropology lie in expeditionary journeys But since the rise of immersive fieldwork usually by a sole investigator the older tradition of team based social research has been largely eclipsed Expeditionary Anthropology argues that expeditions have much to tell us about anthropologists and the people they studied The book charts the diversity of anthropological expeditions and analyzes the often passionate arguments they provoked Drawing on recent developments in gender studies indigenous studies and the history of science the book argues that even today the science of man is deeply inscribed by its connections with expeditionary travel Margaret Mead Nancy C. Transcending Capitalism Howard Brick, 2015-09-25 Transcending Capitalism explains why many influential midcentury American social theorists came to believe it was no longer meaningful to describe modern Western society as capitalist but instead preferred alternative terms such as postcapitalist postindustrial or technological Considering the discussion today of capitalism and its global triumph it is important to understand why a prior generation of social theorists imagined the future of advanced societies not in a fixed capitalist form but in some course of development leading beyond capitalism Howard Brick locates this postcapitalist vision within a long history of social theory and ideology He challenges the common view that American thought and culture utterly succumbed in the 1940s to a conservative cold war consensus that put aside the reform ideology and social theory of the early twentieth century. Rather, expectations of the shift to a new social economy persisted and cannot be disregarded as one of the elements contributing to the revival of dissenting thought and practice in the 1960s. Rooted in a politics of social liberalism, this vision held influence for roughly a half century from its interwar origins until the right turn in American political culture during the 1970s and 1980s. In offering a historically based understanding of American postcapitalist thought, Brick also presents some current possibilities for reinvigorating critical social thought that explores transitional developments beyond capitalism.

Generations of Women Historians Hilda L. Smith, Melinda S. Zook, 2018-07-11 This collection focuses on generations of early women historians seeking to identify the intellectual milieu and professional realities that framed their lives. It moves beyond treating them as simply individuals and looks to the social and intellectual forces that encouraged them to study history and at the same time would often limit the reach and define the nature of their study. This collection of essays speaks to female practitioners of history over the past four centuries that published original histories, some within a university setting and some outside. By analysing the values these early women scholars faced, readers can understand the broader social values that led women historians to exist as a unit apart from the career path of their male colleagues.

The Trashing of Margaret Mead Paul Shankman, 2009-12-03 In 1928 Margaret Mead published Coming of Age in Samoa, a fascinating study of the lives of adolescent girls that transformed Mead herself into an academic celebrity. In 1983 anthropologist Derek Freeman published a scathing critique of Mead's Samoan research, badly damaging her reputation. Resonating beyond academic circles, his case against Mead tapped into important public concerns of the 1980s, including sexual permissiveness, cultural relativism, and the nature/nurture debate. In venues from the New York Times to the TV show Donahue, Freeman argued that Mead had been hoaxed by Samoans whose innocent lies she took at face value. In The Trashing of Margaret Mead, Paul Shankman explores the many dimensions of the Mead-Freeman controversy as it developed publicly and as it played out privately, including the personal relationships, professional rivalries, and larger-than-life personalities that drove it. Providing a critical perspective on Freeman's arguments, Shankman reviews key questions about Samoan sexuality, the alleged hoaxing of Mead, and the meaning of the controversy. Why were Freeman's arguments so readily accepted by pundits outside the field of anthropology? What did Samoans themselves think? Can Mead's reputation be salvaged from the quicksand of controversy? Written in an engaging, clear style and based on a careful review of the evidence, The Trashing of Margaret Mead illuminates questions of enduring significance to the academy and beyond. 2010 Distinguished Lecturer in Anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History, The Trashing of Margaret Mead reminds readers of the pitfalls of academia. It urges scholars to avoid personal attacks and to engage in healthy debate. The book redeems Mead while also redeeming the field of anthropology. By showing the uniqueness of the Mead-Freeman case, Shankman places his continued confidence in academia, scholars, and the field of anthropology. H Net Reviews her daughter Mary Catherine Bateson a renowned author and anthropologist in her own right this volume of letters from Mead to those who shared her life and work offers new insight into a rich and deeply complex mind     Intertwined Lives Lois W. Molloy, 2008-02-20 Margaret Mead's career took off in 1928 with the publication of Coming of Age in Samoa Within ten years she was the best known academic in the United States a role she enjoyed all of her life In On Creating a Usable Culture Maureen Molloy explores how Mead was influenced by and influenced the meanings of American culture and secured for herself a unique and enduring place in the American popular imagination She considers this in relation to Mead's four popular ethnographies written between the wars Coming of Age in Samoa Growing Up in New Guinea The Changing Culture of an Indian Tribe and Sex and Temperament in Three Primitive Societies and the academic middle brow and popular responses to them Molloy argues that Mead was heavily influenced by the debates concerning the forging of a distinctive American culture that began around 1911 with the publication of George Santayana's The Genteel Tradition The creation of a national culture would solve the problems of alienation and provincialism and establish a place for both native born and immigrant communities Mead drew on this vision of an integrated culture and used her primitive societies as exemplars of how cultures attained or failed to attain this ideal Her ethnographies are really about America the peoples she studied serving as the personifications of what were widely understood to be the dilemmas of American selfhood in a materialistic individualistic society Two themes subtend Molloy's analysis The first is Mead's articulation of the individual's relation to his or her culture via the trope of sex Each of her early ethnographies focuses on a character and his or her problems as expressed through sexuality This thematic ties her work closely to the popularization of psychoanalysis at the time with its understanding of sex as the key to the self The second theme involves the change in Mead's attitude toward and definition of culture from the cultural determinism in Coming of Age to culture as the enemy of the individual in Sex and Temperament This trend parallels the consolidation and objectification of popular and professional notions about culture in the 1920s and 1930s On Creating a Usable Culture will be eagerly welcomed by those with an interest in American studies and history cultural studies and the social sciences and most especially by readers of American intellectual history the history of anthropology gender studies and studies of modernism William Alexander Percy Benjamin E. Wise, 2012 William Alexander Percy

Boasian Verse Philipp Schweighauser, 2022-11-30 Boasian Verse explores the understudied poetic output of three major twentieth century anthropologists Edward Sapir Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead Providing a comparative analysis of their anthropological and poetic works this volume explores the divergent representations of cultural others and the uses of ethnographic studies for cultural critique This volume aims to illuminate central questions including Why did they choose to write poetry about their ethnographic endeavors Why did they choose to write the way they wrote Was poetry used to approach the objects of their research in different perhaps ethically more viable ways Did poetry allow them to transcend their own primitivist even evolutionist tendencies or did it much rather refashion or even amplify those tendencies This in depth examination of these ethnographic poems invites both cultural anthropologists and students of literature to reevaluate the Boasian legacy of cultural relativism primitivism and residual evolutionism for the twenty first century This volume offers a fresh perspective on some of the key texts that have shaped twentieth and twenty first century discussions of culture and cultural relativism and a unique contribution to readers interested in the dynamic area of multimodal anthropologies
