Canada's Francophone Minority Communities
Michael Derek Behiels, 2004

By the late 1950s Canada's Francophone and Acadian minority communities were in rapid decline Demographic economic socio cultural institutional and political factors that had sustained both the concept and the reality of French Canada for well over a century were being eliminated or transformed at an unprecedented rate To survive these beleaguered minority communities set out to conquer the challenges of rebuilding their provincial and national organizations training a new generation of leaders redefining their respective provincial and national identities elaborating new political and constitutional policies and strategies for survival and expansion and then defending and securing full implementation of these policies and strategies growth of their communities revitalized Francophone organizations and leaders lobbied for constitutional entrenchment of official bilingualism and of a mandated Charter right to education in their own language including the right to governance over their own schools and school boards Having achieved their objectives in the 1982 Charter of Rights and Freedoms Francophone provincial and national leaders learned the techniques of micro constitutional politics to convince the Ontario Alberta and Manitoba provincial governments to implement full and unfettered school governance by and for Francophone minority communities a collectivist and remedial interpretation to the Charter's official language minority education rights section 23 The Canadian government assisted the Francophone minority in two ways it made funds available to Francophone organizations and parents via the Court Challenges program and it signed lucrative financial agreements with the provinces to help defray the additional costs of establishing French language schools and school boards While the Francophone minority communities were pursuing implementation of their section 23 Charter rights they found themselves drawn into the mega constitutional negotiations and ratification procedures surrounding the controversial Meech Lake Constitutional Accord 1987 90 and the omnibus Charlottetown Consensus Report 1990 92 During the Quebec Provincial Round their Charter rights remained intact when the Meech Lake Accord failed to obtain ratification conception of a pan Canadian cultural and linguistic duality which helped minimize the constitutional and political impact of the Quebec government's insistence upon a territorial conception of duality that is an asymmetrical Canada Quebec federation When Canadians rejected the Charlottetown deal neither conception achieved formal constitutional recognition Nevertheless Canada's Francophone minority communities were regenerated by the intertwined developments of constitutional renewal and their winning of school governance A new vigorous Francophone pan Canadian national community emerged one capable of ensuring the survival of its constituents communities well into the 21st century

Freedom and Indigenous Constitutionalism John Borrows, 2016-05-12 Indigenous traditions can be uplifting positive and liberating forces when they are connected to living systems of thought and practice Problems arise when they are treated as timeless models of unchanging truth that require unwavering deference and unquestioning obedience Freedom and Indigenous Constitutionalism celebrates the emancipatory potential of Indigenous traditions considers their value as the basis for good laws and good lives and critiques the failure of Canadian constitutional traditions to recognize their significance Demonstrating how Canada's constitutional structures marginalize Indigenous peoples ability to exercise power in the real world John Borrows uses Ojibwe law stories and principles to suggest alternative ways in which Indigenous peoples can work to enhance freedom Among the stimulating issues he approaches are the democratic potential of civil disobedience the hazards of applying originalism rather than living tree jurisprudence in the interpretation of Aboriginal and treaty rights American legislative actions that could also animate Indigenous self determination in Canada and the opportunity for Indigenous governmental action to address violence against women

Imperial Justice Bonny Ibhawoh, 2013-10-03 Imperial Justice explores the imperial control of judicial governance and the adjudication of colonial difference in British Africa Focusing on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the colonial regional Appeal Courts for West Africa and East Africa it examines how judicial discourses of native difference and imperial universalism in local disputes influenced practices of power in colonial settings and shaped an evolving jurisprudence of

Empire Arguing that the Imperial Appeal Courts were key sites where colonial legal modernity was fashioned the book examines the tensions that permeated the colonial legal system such as the difficulty of upholding basic standards of British justice while at the same time allowing for local customary divergence which was thought essential to achieving that justice The modernizing mission of British justice could only truly be achieved through recognition of local exceptionality and difference Natives who appealed to the Courts of Empire were entitled to the same standards of justice as their civilized colonists yet the boundaries of racial ethnic and cultural difference somehow had to be recognized and maintained in the adjudicatory process Meeting these divergent goals required flexibility in colonial law making as well as in the administration of justice In the paradox of integration and differentiation imperial power and local cultures were not always in conflict but were sometimes complementary and mutually reinforcing The book draws attention not only to the role of Imperial Appeal Courts in the colonies but also to the reciprocal place of colonized peoples in shaping the processes and outcomes of imperial justice A valuable addition to British colonial literature this book places Africa in a central role and examines the role of the African colonies in the shaping of British Imperial jurisprudence

Continentalizing Canada Gregory J. Inwood, 2005-01-01 Free trade has been a highly contentious issue since the Conservative government of Brian Mulroney negotiated the first deal with the United States in the 1980s Tracing the roots of Canada's contemporary involvement in North American free trade back to the Royal Commission on the Economic Union and Development Prospects for Canada in 1985 also known as the Macdonald Commission Gregory J Inwood offers a critical examination of the commission and how its findings affected Canada's political and economic landscape including its present day reverberations Using original research including content analysis interviews archival information and surveys of relevant literature Inwood argues that the Macdonald Commission created an atmosphere and political discourse that made the continentalization of Canada possible by way of free trade agreements with the U S and Mexico Through the use of a suspect research program and with the aid of a select oligarchy within the Commission and the government bureaucracy opposition to continentalism from both the majority of the Canadian population and even several commissioners was ignored Accessible to readers interested in Canadian politics policy or economy Continentalizing Canada offers a thorough examination into the Macdonald Commission and the resulting discourse in the Canadian political economy
