Realising Participation Elderly People As Active Users Of Health And Social Care:

Realising Participation Kathryn Roberts, Tom Chapman, 2017-10-05 This title was first published in 2001 During the last twenty years government rhetoric in the UK has increasingly advocated that statutory health and social care services should regard and treat recipients as consumers in the same way as companies and organizations in the private sector This involves a considerable cultural change on the part of both service providers and their clients and this timely study explores the extent to which such a cultural change is actually taking place in British society The utilization of welfare services by a sample of people aged 70 and above on discharge from inpatient care and in a short period afterwards is examined as a critical testbed for key components of consumerism including participation representation access choice information and redress The book explores not only the extent to which opportunities are being provided for users to play an active role in their care but also their degree of willingness to assume such a role By investigating the experiences of clients from a generation which might be considered relatively resistant to a more active participation in health and social care the study offers an important insight into the extent to which a real social transformation is indeed taking place in the British welfare services

Managing the ageing experience Denise Tanner, 2010-09-01 Current social policy recognises that older people should be treated as experts in their own lives and be actively involved in their care This book explores what can be learned from older people's experiences of managing ageing Direct connections are made between the everyday experiences and perspectives of older people related research and theoretical perspectives This yields an engaging and informative analysis of how older people manage the ageing experience and what this means for policy and practice directed at promoting older people's wellbeing The book will be of value to undergraduate and postgraduate students in health and social care and practitioners in these fields

Working with Older People John Harris, Denise Tanner, 2007-10-11 Working with older people has become an increasingly important part of social work education and practice Whether studying community care adult services human growth and development or social work processes and interventions this book will be a vital source of information and help Working with Older People provides a framework of knowledge skills and values pertinent to qualifying social work courses and the new post qualifying award in Social Work with Adults including discussion of ideas about human development and theories of older age legislation social policy and social welfare skills for working with older people assessment and care planning partnership working Written by two experienced educators and practitioners this key text facilitates individual or group learning through features such as objectives for each chapter case studies and further reading suggestions There are numerous activities throughout the book and the final chapter contains pointers to consider for all of the activities It will be essential reading for social work students and qualified social workers

Solidarity in Health and Social Care in Europe W. Arts, R. Muffels, 2013-03-14 OF SOLIDARITY IN UK SOCIAL WELFARE Here then perhaps is a British version of solidarity in social welfare but early there are strong tensions between the powerfully liberal individualistic strands of the British understanding of the functions of the state and the socialistic or communitarian tendency of a commitment to universal welfare provision In the search for the roots of this understanding of welfare we shall survey first the historical background to these tensions in some early British political philosophers starting with Hobbes and ending with Mill We then consider the philosophical and social influences on the Beveridge Report itself and we will trace the emergence of the philosophy of the welfare state in the era following the Second World War Finally we consider the contemporary debate as it relates to the Third Way thinking of New Labour 2 A HISTORICAL SKETCH In the previous section we observed that the philosophy underlying the Beveridge Report could be described as liberal collectivism What are the historical antecedents of this strange amalgam of individualism and collectivism Within the short scope of this chapter any account of the philosophical history must be little more than a sketch but we can perhaps understand most debates in British socio political thought as a continuing dialogue with the well known claim of Thomas Hobbes in Leviathan that all political institutions are founded on egoistic motives

Creative Ageing Cities Keng Hua Chong,Mihye Cho,2018-01-29 Ageing population and rapid urbanisation are the two major demographic shifts in today s world Architectural designs and urban policies have to deal with issues of an ever larger elderly population living in the cities especially in old urban neighbourhoods while also taking into consideration the evolving lifestyles and wellbeing of the diverse elderly demographic Being able to continue living in these existing urban neighbourhoods would thus require necessary interventions both to adapt the changing needs of the ageing population and to improve the deteriorating environment for better liveability Creative Ageing Cities discusses the participation and contribution of the ageing population as a positive and creative force towards urban design and place making particularly in high density urban contexts as observed in a collection of empirical cases found in rapidly ageing Asian cities This book is the first to bring together multidisciplinary scholastic research on ageing and urban issues from across top six ageing cities in Asia Singapore Seoul Tokyo Taipei Hong Kong and Shanghai Through these case studies this book gives a good overview of diverse challenges and opportunities in the various Asian urban contexts and offers a new perspective of an ageing and urban design framework that emphasises multi stakeholder collaboration inter generational relations and the collective wisdom of older people as a source of creativity
