

An aerial photograph of a rural landscape. In the center, there is a large, light-colored building complex, possibly a farm or a small village, with several smaller structures and a prominent white tower or lighthouse-like structure. A winding road or path leads from the bottom left towards the building complex. The surrounding area is a mix of fields and trees.

The Archaeology of the Roman Economy Kevin Greene, 1986 Kevin Greene shows how archaeology can help provide a more balanced view of the Roman economy by informing the classical historian about geographical areas and classes of society that received little attention from the largely aristocratic classical writers whose work survives The Archaeology of Medieval England and Wales John Steane,2014-10-30 In the preceding 25 years to this book's publication in 1985 there was an extensive and unprecedented burst of archaeological activity in evidence from below ground deposits above ground structures and artefacts During the boom of the late 1960s and 1970s which led to go much central town redevelopment it was buried remains which yielded the most dramatic information In the recession of the 1980s it was realised that upstanding remains had a lot to offer as well and they were being subject to ever more sophisticated study techniques This book examines those recent developments in archaeology and assesses their bearing on the study of medieval English and Welsh history Taking a series of important themes such as government religion and the countryside the book offers a chronological approach from the coming of the Vikings 850 AD to the Reformation in 1530 This approach focuses on the impact of man on the urban and rural landscape An important text for students of ancient history Crusading and Archaeology Vardit R.

Shotten-Hallel,Rosie Weetch,2020-11-03 Between the eleventh and fifteenth centuries the social and cultural worlds of medieval Europe and the Eastern Mediterranean were transformed by the religious impetus of the crusades Today we bear witness to these transformations in the material and environmental record revealed by new archaeological excavations and reappraisals of museum collections This volume highlights new archaeological knowledge being developed by scholars working in the fields of history archaeology numismatics and architecture to demonstrate its potential to change and augment our understanding of the crusades The 16 chapters in this volume deploy a contemporary scientific approach to archaeology of the crusades to give an up to date account into the diverse range of research in this area They explore five key themes the implications of scientific methods new excavations and surveys architectural analyses sigillography and the application of social interpretations Together these chapters provide a new way of approaching the study of the crusades and demonstrate the value of taking a holistic view that utilises the full diverse range of evidence available to us The Archaeology of Medieval Villages Currently Inhabited in Europe Jesús Fernández Fernández,Margarita Fernández Mier,2019-08-29 Archaeological interventions in European rural settlements have largely focussed on villages abandoned during the last millennium Most hamlets and villages of medieval origin remain inhabited however and excavations have been scarce This book details excavations of inhabited sites in the UK the Netherlands France Scandinavia and Spain

Advances in Titicaca Basin Archaeology-2 Abigail R. Levine,Alexei Vranich,2013-12-31 This volume the second in a series of studies on the archaeology of the Titicaca Basin serves as an excellent springboard for broader discussions of the roles of ritual authority coercion and the intensification of resources and trade for the development of archaic states worldwide Over the last hundred years scholars have painstakingly pieced together fragments of the incredible cultural history of the Titicaca Basin an area that encompasses over 50 000 km² achieving a basic understanding of settlement patterns and chronology While large scale surveys will need to continue and areas will need to be revisited to further refine chronologies and knowledge of site formation processes the maturation of the field now allows archaeologists to fruitfully invest energy in single locations and specialized topics

The Archaeology of Peasantry in Roman Spain Jesús Bermejo Tirado, Ignasi Grau Mira, 2022-01-19 This volume aims to present an updated portrait of the Roman countryside in Roman Spain by the comparison of different theoretical orientations and methodological strategies including the discussion of textual and iconographic sources and the analysis of the faunal remains The archaeology of rural areas of the Roman world has traditionally been focused on the study of villae both as an architectural model of Roman otium and as the central core of an economic system based on the extensive agricultural exploitation of latifundia The assimilation of most rural settlements in provincial areas of the Roman Empire with the villa model implies the acceptance of specific ideas such as the generalization of the slave mode of production the rupture of the productive capacity of Late Iron Age communities or the reduction in importance of free peasant labor in the Roman economy of most rural areas However in recent decades as a consequence of the generalized extension of preventive or emergency archaeology and survey projects in most areas of the ancient territories of the Roman Empire this traditional conception of the Roman countryside articulated around monumental villae is undergoing a thorough revision New research projects are changing our current perception of the countryside of most parts of the Roman provincial world by assessing the importance of different types of rural settlements In the last years we have witnessed the publication of archaeological reports on the excavation of thousands of small rural sites farms farmsteads enclosures rural agglomerations of diverse nature etc One of the main consequences of all this research activity is a vigorous discussion of the paradigm of the slave mode of production as the basis of Roman rural economies in many provincial areas A similar change in the paradigm is taking place with some delay in the archaeology of Roman Spain After decades of preventive emergency interventions there is a considerable quantity of unpublished data on this kind of rural settlements However unlike the cases of Roman Britain or Gallia Comata no synthesis or national projects are undertaking the task of systematizing all these data With the intention of addressing this current situation the present volume discusses the results and methodological strategies of different projects studying peasant settlements in several regions of Roman Spain

Global Archaeological Theory Pedro Paulo Funari, Andrés Zarankin, Emily Stovel, 2006-04-07 Archaeological theory has gone through a great upheaval in the last 50 years from the processual theory which wanted to make archaeology more scientific to post processual theory which understands that interpreting human behavior even of past cultures is a subjective study This subjective approach incorporates a plurality of readings thereby implying that different interpretations are always possible allowing us to modify and change our ideas under the light of new information and or interpretive frameworks In this way interpretations form a continuous flow of transformation and change and thus archaeologists do not uncover a real past but rather construct a historical past or a narrative of the past Post processual theory also incorporates a conscious and explicit political interest on the past of the scholar and the subject This includes fields and topics such as gender issues ethnicity class landscapes and consumption This reflects a conscious attempt to also decentralize the discipline from an imperialist point of view to an empowering one Method and theory also means being politically aware and engaged to incorporate diverse critical approaches to improve understanding of the past and the present This book focuses on the fundamental theoretical issues found in the discipline and thus both engages and represents the very rich plurality of the post processual approach to archaeology The book is divided into four sections Issues in Archaeological Theory Archaeological Theory and Method in Action Space and Power in Material Culture and Images as Material Discourse

Case Studies in Environmental Archaeology Elizabeth Reitz,C. Margaret Scarry,Sylvia J. Scudder,2008 This book highlights studies addressing significant anthropological issues in the Americas from the perspective of environmental archaeology The book uses case studies to resolve questions related to human behavior in the past rather than to demonstrate the application of methods Each chapter is an original or revised work by an internationally recognized scientist This second edition is based on the 1996 book of the same title The editors have invited back a number of contributors from the first edition to revise and update their chapter New studies are included in order to cover recent developments in the field or additional pertinent topics People and Agrarian Landscapes: An Archaeology of Postclassical Local Societies in the Western Mediterranean Juan Antonio Quirós Castillo,Josu Narbarte Hernández,2023-04-06 This book provides an overview of the driving theories methodologies and main topics that have been addressed to date regarding agrarian archaeology The text is presented as an introduction for students a critical reading guide for other scholars and an informative instrument aimed at a wide audience

The Iberian Peninsula between 300 and 850 Martínez Jiménez,Isaac Sastre de Diego,Carlos Tejerizo,2025-10-01 The vast transformation of the Roman world at the end of antiquity has been a subject of broad scholarly interest for decades but until now no book has focused specifically on the Iberian Peninsula in the period as seen through an archaeological lens Given the sparse documentary evidence available archaeology holds the key to a richer understanding of the developments of the period and this book addresses a number of issues that arise from analysis of the available material culture including questions of the process of Christianisation and Islamisation continuity and abandonment of Roman urban patterns and forms the end of villas and the growth of villages and the adaptation of the population and the elites to the changing political circumstances A
