Commodification And Spectacle in Architecture William S. Saunders, More than ever architectural design is seen as a means to promote commercial goals rather than as an end in itself Frank Gehry s Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao for example simply cannot be considered apart from its intended role as a catalyst for the economic revitalization of Bilbao and its ability to attract tourist dollars regardless of its architectural merits A built environment intended to seduce consumers is more likely to offer instant gratification than to invite independent thought and reflection But how harmful if at all is this unprecedented commercialization of architecture Framed with a provocative introduction by Kenneth Frampton the contributions to Commodification and Spectacle in Architecture stake out a variety of positions in the debate over the extent to which it is possible or desirable to escape from resist or suggest plausible alternatives to the dominant culture of consumer capitalism Rejecting any dreamy nostalgia for an idealized present or past in which design is completely divorced from commerce and in some cases celebrating the pleasures of spectacle the individual essays range from indictments of particular architects and critiques of the profession to broader concerns about what the phenomenon of commodification means for the practice of democracy and the health of society Bringing together an impressive and varied group of critics and practitioners Commodification and Spectacle in Architecture will help to sharpen the discussion of how design can respond to our hypercommodified culture Contributors Michael Benedikt Luis Fern ndez Galiano Thomas Frank Kevin Ervin Kelley Daniel Naeyegele Rick Poyner Michael Sorkin Wouter Vanstiphout William S Saunders is editor of Harvard Design Magazine and assistant dean for external relations at the Harvard Design School He is the author of Modern Architecture Photographs by Ezra Stoller Kenneth Frampton is Ware Professor of Architecture at Columbia University Graduate School of Architecture Planning and Preservation and author of many books including Labour Work and Architecture

Development Jay W. Rojewski,2004-12-01 Development of this text has been based on the notion that workforce education and development WFED systems such as secondary and postsecondary vocational and technical education VTE career education and guidance human resource and organizational development HROD and adult training and retraining including literacy programs have essential roles to play in supporting both individual and national efforts to successfully participate in and reap the benefits offered by globalization While this assumption has intuitive appeal not everyone believes that vocational preparation programs result in positive outcomes Psacharopoulos 1997 an outspoken international critic of vocational education and training argues that WFED programs often have a low rate of return on a country s investment when compared to that of the general academic curriculum He contends that WFED initiatives often fail because too much emphasis is placed on these efforts to address myriad complex issues and that decision makers do not utilize the available evidence about VTE to make prudent informed choices Instead major players in the global economy like the World Bank tout basic academic education as an essential priority for developing countries wanting to enter into global markets and exchange
