Probation , 2003 Punishing Juveniles Ido Weijers, R A Duff, 2002-09-06 The first special juvenile court was created in 1899 Since then juvenile justice has had a chequered history and is now more controversial than ever Should our treatment of young offenders differ in its aims or principles from that of adult offenders What role should ideas of punishment or retribution play Should our aims be rehabilitative and educative rather than punitive Should we divert young offenders from the criminal justice system altogether opting for restorative rather than retributive justice These questions are addressed in this inter disciplinary volume which brings together criminologists educationalists psychologists and philosophers Part I traces the history of juvenile justice identifying patterns and signs of what the future might hold Part II tackles fundamental normative issues of punishment moral education and restoration with particular emphasis on the role of communication Part

Mitchell, 2021-09-15 This book goes beyond other police leadership books to teach practitioners how to think about policing in a structured way that synthesizes criminological theory statistics research design applied research and what works and what doesn't in policing into Mental Models A Mental Model is a representation of how something works Using a Mental Model framework to simplify complex concepts readers will take away an in depth understanding of how cognitive biases affect our ability to understand and interpret data what empirical research says about effective police interventions how statistical data should be structured for management meetings and how to evaluate interventions for efficiency and effectiveness While evidence based practice is critical to advancing the police profession it is limited in scope and is only part of what is necessary to support sustainable change in policing Policing requires a scientifically based framework to understand and interpret data in a way that minimizes cognitive bias to allow for better responses to complex problems Data and research have advanced so rapidly in the last several decades that it is difficult for even the most ambitious of police leaders to keep pace The Twenty one Mental Models were synthesized to create a framework for any police public or community leader to better understand how cognitive bias contributes to misunderstanding data and gives the reader the tools to overcome those biases to better serve their communities The book is intended for a wide range of audiences including law enforcement and community leaders scholars and policy experts who specialize in policing students of criminal justice organizations and management reporters and journalists individuals who aspire to police careers and citizen consumers of information about policing Anyone who is going to make decisions about their communities based on data has a responsibility to be numerate and this book Twenty one Mental Models That Can Change Policing A Framework For Using Data and Research For Overcoming Cognitive Bias will help you become just that

Reform in the Making Ann Chih Lin, 2002-06-10 Is it time to give up on rehabilitating criminals Record numbers of Americans are going to prison and most of them will eventually return to society with a high chance of becoming repeat offenders But a decision to abandon rehabilitation programs now would be premature warns Ann Chih Lin who finds that little attention has been given to how these programs are actually implemented and why they tend to fail In Reform in the Making she not only supplies much needed information on the process of program implementation but she also considers its social context the daily realities faced by prison staff and inmates By offering an in depth look at common rehabilitation programs currently in operation education job training and drug treatment and examining how they are used or misused Lin offers a practical approach to understanding their high failure rate and how the situation could be improved Based on extensive observation and over 350 interviews with staff and prisoners in five medium security male prisons the book contrasts successfully implemented programs with subverted abandoned or neglected programs those which staff reject or which do not teach prisoners anything useful Lin explains that staff and prisoners have little patience with programs aimed at long range goals when they must face the ongoing immediate challenge of surviving prison life Finding incentives to make both sides participate fully in rehabilitation is among the book's many contributions to improving prison policy *National Academy Press ...
