Agronomic Crops Mirza Hasanuzzaman, 2019-11-28. Agronomic crops have been used to provide foods, beverages, fodders, fuels, medicines and industrial raw materials since the dawn of human civilization. Today agronomic crops are being cultivated by employing scientific methods instead of traditional methods. However in the current era of climate change agronomic crops are subjected to various environmental stresses which results in substantial yield loss. To meet the food demands of the ever increasing global population, new technologies and management practices are being adopted to boost yield and maintain productivity under both normal and adverse conditions. Scientists are now exploring a variety of approaches to the sustainable production of agronomic crops including varietal development, soil management, nutrient and water management, pest management etc. Researchers have also made remarkable progress in developing stress tolerance in crops through different approaches. However achieving optimal production to meet the increasing food demand is an open challenge. Although there have been numerous publications on the above mentioned problems and despite the extensive research being conducted on them, there is hardly any comprehensive book available. In response, this book offers a timely resource addressing all aspects of production technologies, management practices and stress tolerance in agronomic crops in a single volume.
