Convivial Urban Spaces Henry Shaftoe, 2012 Despite developments in urban design during the last few decades architects urban planners and designers often continue to produce areas of bland commercially led urban fabric that deliver the basic functional requirements of shelter work and leisure but are socially unsustainable and likely generators of future problems Convivial Urban Spaces demonstrates that successful urban public spaces are an essential part of a sustainable built environment Without them we are likely to drift into an increasingly private and polarized society with all the problems that would imply Taking a multidisciplinary approach this book draws on research and the literature and theory of environmental psychology and urban design to advance our understanding of what makes effective public spaces Practical guidance is illustrated with case studies from the UK Spain Germany and Italy The result is a practical and clearly presented guide to urban public space for planners architects and students of the urban environment Considering Research Architectural Research Centers Consortium. Two Degrees: The Built Environment and Our Changing Climate Alisdair McGregor, Cole Roberts, Fiona Cousins, 2013-05-02 The Earth's temperature has been rising To limit catastrophic outcomes the international scientific community has set a challenging goal of no more than two degrees Celsius 3.6 degrees Fahrenheit average temperature rise Economists agree we will save trillions of dollars by acting early But how do we act successfully And what's the backup plan if we fall short Setting politics aside Two Degrees reviews the current science and explains how we can set practical steps to reduce the extent of warming and to adapt to the inevitable changes all while improving the bottom line beautifying our communities and increasing human health The book is a practical guide intended for a broad audience of those who occupy and shape our built environment The authors provide a clear framework for communities policy makers planners designers developers builders and operators to help manage the impacts and capture the opportunities of our changing climate Two Degrees is divided into three sections Fundamentals Mitigation and Adaptation covering a diverse array of topics ranging from climate positive communities and low carbon buildings to the psychology of choice and the cost of a low carbon economy After a foreword by Amory Lovins more than 10 contributing authors share knowledge based on direct experience in all aspects of built environment practice This book clarifies the misconceptions provides new and unique insights and shows how a better approach to the built environment can increase resilience and positively shape our future Cities, Change, and Conflict Nancy Kleniewski, Alexander R. Thomas, Gregory Fulkerson, 2024-06-28 Cities Change and Conflict was one of the first texts to embrace the perspective of political economy as its main explanatory framework and then complement it with the rich contributions of human ecology as well as perspectives derived from critical approaches to social theory Although its primary focus is on North American cities the book contains several chapters on cities in other parts of the world including the Global North and Global South It provides both historical and contemporary accounts of the impact of globalization on urban development and urban institutions This sixth edition features a new groundbreaking chapter on the relationship between the physical environment and human settlements including the urban rural nexus This edition also expands and updates coverage of recent trends such as the establishment and evolution of gay neighborhoods the suburbanization of immigrant groups the situation of the immigrant youth known as Dreamers the reverse migration of Blacks from the North to the South and the proliferation of exurban communities Beyond examining the dynamics that shape the form and functionality of cities the text surveys the experience of urban life among different social groups including a new perspective on intersectionality as it affects people's experiences in cities It illuminates the workings of the urban economy local and federal governments and the criminal justice system while addressing policy debates and decisions that affect almost every aspect of urbanization and urban life i-Converge: Changing Dimensions of the Built Environment Anjali Krishan Sharma, Aanchal Sharma, Shraddha Bahukhandi, 2023-11-09 The conference presented a multidisciplinary interactive forum to researchers students academicians industry professionals policymakers and scientists focusing on three key tracks namely Architecture and Built Environment Planning and Practices and Design and Society Presenters shared experiences research results and scholarly contributions and discussed the practical challenges encountered and solutions to be adopted The selected contributions are enclosed within the proceedings

Governance of Climate Responsive Cities Ender Peker, Anlı Ataöv, 2021-07-01 The book presents governance with a particular focus on the social and spatial aspects of climate responsiveness and reads the practice of governance across different scales It conceptualizes a framework of scale composed of three main categories including i scientific knowledge ii plans and policies and iii authorities of action This framework presents practice as the social context in which these three can interplay adaptively Within this framework the book presents case studies from Turkey Italy Ecuador Chile and the UK that reach meaningful planning and design solutions at national city and neighbourhood scales in the face of climate change It offers implementation clues that are transferable to ever increasing climate action around the globe The book will be of interest to both professionals and scholars involved in urban design urban planning and architecture especially those in the field of climate responsive urbanism It will also be a valuable resource for non governmental organizations and social enterprises dealing with sustainability and climate change policies Western Sociological Review,1978 Public Health Practice in Australia Vivian Lin,James Smith,Sally Fawkes,2025-07-28 The third edition of Public Health Practice in Australia has been written as the impact and effects of the COVID 19 pandemic are starting to be fully understood The book takes a systems approach to public health examining the impact of historical social economic environmental and political factors on the health of individuals communities and populations Linking theoretical issues to contemporary practice it highlights common threads that underlie seemingly disparate activities ideas and entities that comprise the organised effort of public health practice As well as the COVID 19 pandemic and the health inequalities that it has highlighted the new edition also emphasizes the importance of ecological health and the impact of climate change on public health Timely and comprehensive and including case studies throughout to bring key concepts to life this is an invaluable resource for students and professionals across the health sciences including public health medicine environmental health health promotion health information management and health administration The Impacts of Green Space on Student Experience at an Urban Community College Vanita Naidoo,2022-07-19 This book presents a rich case study examining physical and spatial factors of urban campus design that influence student experience and wellbeing The text details important historical context illustrating the foundational concepts and purpose of college sites in the United States and maps economic reforms and policies which have driven the development of today s inner city campuses Focusing on Bronx Community College New York and looking specifically at how the presence or absence of green space impacts students the text then draws on diverse student voices to examine how students use open spaces and how this influences their sense of belonging stress reduction and scholarly identities The author s historical and qualitative research presents original insights and relies on a rich body of textual and on site investigation This book will be a valuable resource for researchers and academics with an interest in urban education and higher education It will be of particular interest to those with a focus on multicultural education and education policy Facing Global Environmental Change Hans Günter Brauch,Navnita Chadha Behera,Patricia Kameri-Mbote,John Grin,Ürsula Oswald Spring,Béchir Chourou,Czeslaw Mesjasz,Heinz Krummenacher,2009-06-04 The year 2007 could perhaps accurately be described as the year when climate change finally received the attention that this challenge deserves globally Much of the information and knowledge that was created in this field during the year was the result of the findings of the Fourth sessment Report AR4 of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC which were disseminated on a large scale and reported extensively by the media This was the result not only of a heightened interest on the part of the public on various aspects of climate change but also because the IPCC itself proactively attempted to spread the findings of its AR4 to the public at large The interest generated on the scientific realities of climate change was further enhanced by the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the IPCC and former Vice President of the US Al Gore By taking this decision in favour of a leader who has done a great deal to create awareness on climate change and a body that assesses all scientific aspects of climate change and disseminates the result of its findings the Norwegian Nobel Committee has clearly drawn the link between climate change and peace in the world WSR, Western Sociological Review ,1979 Formal

Kate Bishop,Katina Dimoulas,2024-07-01 Children and young people are often discussed as if they are homogenous groups The reality is of course very different with an enormous variation within each of these groups and in any domain of experience pertaining to childhood or adolescence Driven by personal sociocultural geographic or economic circumstances many children and young people worldwide are experiencing a totally different reality to those who fit with more mainstream patterns of childhood This has substantial implications for their sociophysical environmental experience and our understanding of their physical environmental needs The aim of this book is to draw attention to these alternate realities for a number of these groups of children and young people highlighting the unique and different considerations associated with their particular circumstances in each instance and identifying the repercussions for their physical environmental needs Ultimately this book creates an evidence based discussion which can be used by designers planners and policy makers and those delivering services and programs to children and young people as a basis to make informed decisions on how to work with the groups of children and young people in our book for better environmental provision Urban Revitalization Carl Grodach,Renia Ehrenfeucht,2015-12-22 Following decades of neglect and decline many US cities have undergone a dramatic renaissance From New York to Nashville and Pittsburgh to Portland governments have implemented innovative redevelopment strategies to adapt to a globally integrated post industrial economy and cope with declining industries tax bases and populations However despite the prominence of new amenities in revitalized neighborhoods spectacular architectural icons and pedestrian friendly entertainment districts the urban comeback has been highly uneven Even thriving cities are defined by a bifurcated population of creative class professionals and a low wage low skilled workforce Many are home to diverse and thriving immigrant communities but also contain economically and socially segregated neighborhoods. They have transformed high profile central city brownfields but many disadvantaged neighborhoods continue to grapple with abandoned and environmentally contaminated sites. As urban cores boom, inner ring suburban areas increasingly face mounting problems while other shrinking cities continue to wrestle with long term decline. The Great Recession brought additional challenges to planning and development professionals and community organizations alike as they work to maintain successes and respond to new problems. It is crucial that students of urban revitalization recognize these challenges, their impacts on different populations, and the implications for crafting effective and equitable revitalization policy. Urban Revitalization: Remaking Cities in a Changing World will be a guide in this learning process. This textbook will be the first to comprehensively and critically synthesize the successful approaches and pressing challenges involved in urban revitalization. The book is divided into five sections. In the introductory section, we set the stage by providing a conceptual framework to understand urban revitalization that links a political economy perspective with an appreciation of socio-cultural factors in explaining urban change. Stemming from this, we will explain the significance of revitalization and present a summary of the key debates, issues, and conflicts surrounding revitalization efforts. Section II will examine the historical causes for decline in central city and inner ring suburban areas and shrinking cities and, building from the conceptual framework, discuss theory useful to explain the factors that shape contemporary revitalization initiatives and outcomes. Section III will introduce students to the analytical techniques and key data sources for urban revitalization planning. Section IV will provide an in-depth critical discussion of contemporary urban revitalization policies, strategies, and projects. This section will offer a rich set of case studies that contextualize key themes and strategic areas across a range of contexts, including the urban core, central city neighborhoods, suburban areas, and shrinking cities. Lastly, Section V concludes by reflecting on the current state of urban revitalization planning and the emerging challenges the field must face in the future. Urban Revitalization will integrate academic and policy research with professional knowledge and techniques. Its key strength will be the combination of a critical examination of best practices and innovative approaches with an overview of the methods used to understand local situations and urban revitalization processes. A unique feature will be chapter-specific case studies of contemporary urban revitalization projects and questions geared toward generating classroom discussion around key issues. The book will be written in an accessible style and thoughtfully organized to provide graduate and upper-level undergraduate students with a comprehensive resource that will also serve as a reference guide for professionals.
