

Themes of Social Studies 3: People, Places, and Environments

When you hear the word geography, I bet your first thought is maps. But, geography is much more than maps. A simple definition of geography is the study of places and locations. Geographers study the relationships between people and their environments. They are interested in the physical properties of the Earth's surface and how humans choose to live in specific environments. Geographers are interested in the migration of people over time. While maps are part of the study of geography, geographers do much more than study places on maps.

Geographers work on communication and transportation systems. Their work is invaluable in linking cities together in networks. When you place a call on your cell phone, you can bet a geographer had something to do with the placement of the tower to connect your call with the person on the other cell phone.

Geographers use sophisticated technology and tools like Geographic Information Systems (GIS) to analyze spatial data or to create images. As the word sounds, spatial literally means space! Geographers assign numerical addresses called coordinates using GIS to label spaces. You may already be familiar with latitude and longitude. They are an example of how geographers use GIS. A Google Map is another example.

GIS uses satellite data and computers to produce multiple images of an area. For example, a city planner might ask the question of where is the next best place to plan to build a new park. A geographer can help him answer this question by using satellite imagery of the city and overlaying a map of the population in an area. From this information, the city planner can see the available places for a park and how many people live within walking distance to the new park site.

A geographer studies nature, land, and the Earth. Geographers study cultural or political structures. They also research the people and features of an area. As you can see, geography is much more than maps!

Hollywood or History? Lisa K. Pennington, Donna Fortune, Mary E. Tackett, Paige Horst, Meghan A. Kessler, 2024-09-01
Teaching and learning through Hollywood or commercial film and television productions is anything but a new approach and has been something of a mainstay in the classroom for nearly a century. However, purposeful and effective instruction through film is not problem free and there are many challenges that accompany classroom applications of Hollywood motion pictures. In response to the problems and possibilities associated with teaching through film, we are developing a collection of practical classroom ready lesson ideas that might bridge gaps between theory and practice and assist teachers endeavoring to make effective use of film in their classrooms. We believe that film can serve as a powerful tool in the social studies classroom and where appropriately utilized, foster critical thinking and civic mindedness. The NCSS College Career and Civic Life C3 framework represents a renewed and formalized emphasis on the perennial social studies goals of deep thinking, reading, and writing. We believe that as teachers endeavor to digest and implement the platform in schools and classrooms across the country, the desire for access to structured strategies that lead to more active and rigorous investigation in the social studies classroom will grow increasingly acute. Our hope is that this edited book might play a small role in the larger project of supporting practitioners specifically K-6 teachers of social studies content by offering a collection of classroom ready tools based on the Hollywood or History strategy and designed to foster inquiry through the careful use of selected motion pictures and television productions.

History? Sarah J. Kaka, 2022-01-01 The rationale for the present text Hollywood or History An Inquiry Based Strategy for Using Film to Teach About Inequality and Inequity Throughout History stems from two main things First and foremost is the fact that the reviews of the first two volumes in the Hollywood or History series have been overwhelmingly positive especially as it pertains to the application of the strategy for practitioners Classroom utility and teacher practice have continued to be the primary objectives in developing the Hollywood or History strategy The second thing is that this most recent volume in the series takes it in a new direction rather than focusing on eras in history it focuses on the themes of inequity and inequality throughout history and how teachers can utilize the Hollywood or History strategy to tackle some of the more complicated content throughout history that many teachers tend to shy away from There is a firm belief that students' connection to film along with teachers' ability to use film in an effective manner will help alleviate some of the challenges of teaching challenging topics such as inequity and inequality in terms of gender race socioeconomic status and so much more The book provides 30 secondary lesson plans grades 6-12 that address nine different topics centered around inequity and inequality throughout history many of which connect students to the world we are living in today The intended audience for the book are teachers who teach social studies at the 6th-12th grade level both in the United States and other countries An additional audience will be college and university social studies history methods professors in the United States and worldwide
