Investigating Social Realism: with reference to Sweet Sixteen (2002) and This Is England (2006) Within the last few years British Cinema and Realism have been linked. "Realism began in the 1930's with documentary films, and a prime example of this is with the 'father of documentary' John Grierson, who founded the British documentary movement and created classic films such as Drifters (1929), Industrial Britain (1933), Song of Ceylon (1934) and Night Mail (1936). "In which British Cinema depicting the daily lifestyles of working class citizens. Social Realism presents a tenacious raw and grim image of lifestyles explored by the working class.

It is conventional for social realism to be filmed with natural lighting, as it help encode realism, with also de saturated colours as Social realism tends to deal with real life issues, as the mood of the media text typically tends to be negative. Over the years the genre has been seen to have a gloomy reputation, which has seen an increase in box office revenue. For example Kidulthood which depicted gang culture with the streets of London, The film was of a low budget (which is normally conventional for a social realist films) and was funded by the UK film council.

Social realist films tend to consist of the socio-economic group of an ABC1 audience and a psychographic group of aspirers from the age range of 30-60 with a secondary audience of students. Social realism can be seen to educate and inform users about grim issues faced upon society. The upper band of the socio economic group, the ABC1 group would tend to use the film for a sense of personal identity or surveillance (Blumer and Katz, 1974) whereas the lower end of socio economic group, C2, D and E audience would use social realism for diversion to gain a sense of escapism from the outside world.

Better than any other genre, social realism has shown us to ourselves, pushing the boundaries in the effort to put the experiences of real Britons on the screen, and shaping our ideas of what British cinema can be. " It is conventional for Social Realism films to have low production values, with a majority of films within the last few years funded by the now closed UK Film Council (UKFC). The UK film council was funded by through sources including the National Lottery. It distributed more than ? 160m of lottery money to over 900 films. Most of which was of the genre of Social Realism.

Established directors such as Ken Loach have created many successfully social realism films with low budgets. For example His most commercially successful recent film is 2009's Looking for Eric (Ken Loach, 2009) featuring a depressed postman's conversations with the ex-Manchester United football star, Eric Cantona (played by Cantona himself). A measure of Loach's difficulties gaining broad release for his work is the fact that this film ended up making only ? 12,000 profit. The film received critical acclaim and won the Magritte Award

Realism, an Essay in Interpretation and Social Reality David J. Levy, 1981 Rethinking Social Realism Stacy I. Morgan, 2004 The social realist movement with its focus on proletarian themes and its strong ties to New Deal programs and leftist politics has long been considered a depression era phenomenon that ended with the start of World War II This study explores how and why African American writers and visual artists sustained an engagement with the themes and aesthetics of social realism into the early cold war era far longer than a majority of their white counterparts Stacy I Morgan recalls the social realist atmosphere in which certain African American artists and writers were immersed and shows how black social realism served alternately to question the existing order instill race pride and build interracial working class coalitions Morgan discusses among others such figures as Charles White John Wilson Frank Marshall Davis Willard Motley Langston Hughes Sterling Brown Elizabeth Catlett and Hale Woodruff Political Postmodernisms Lidia Klein, 2023-03-31 Political Postmodernisms shows how sites outside of Western Europe and North America undermine an established narrative of architecture theory and history It focuses specifically on postmodern architecture which is traditionally understood as embodying the flippant and apolitical aesthetics of capitalist affluence By investigating postmodern architecture s manifestations in the unlikely settings of Chile during the neoliberal dictatorship of Augusto Pinochet and Poland during the late socialist Polish People s Republic the book argues for a new account that incorporates the political roles it plays when seen in a global perspective Political Postmodernisms has three goals First it challenges the familiar narrative regarding postmodern architecture as following the cultural logic of late capitalism Fredric Jameson or as a socially conservative project Jürgen Habermas Second it fills in portions of Chilean and Polish architectural history that have been neglected by Chilean and Polish architectural historians themselves Third Political Postmodernisms shows how architecture can work as a political form serving propagandistic purposes and functioning as part of oppositional projects The book is projected to be of use to students and scholars in global modern and contemporary architecture history history of urban planning East European Studies and Latin American Studies The Philosopher's Index , 1996 Chinese Ibsenism Kwok-kan Tam, 2019-09-10 This book is a study of the relation between theatre art and ideology in the Chinese experimentations with new selfhood as a result of Ibsen s impact It also explores Ibsenian notions of self women and gender in China and provides an illuminating study of Chinese theatre as a public sphere in the dissemination of radical ideas Ibsen is the major source of modern Chinese selfhood which carries notions of personal and social liberation and has exerted great impacts on Chinese revolutions since the beginning of the twentieth century Ibsen s idea of the self as an individual has led to various experimentations in theatre film and fiction to project new notions of selfhood in particular women s selfhood throughout the history of modern China Even today China is experimenting with Ibsen s notions of gender power individualism and self Kwok kan Tam is Chair Professor of English and Dean of Humanities and Social Science at the Hang Seng University of Hong

Keith Booker, 2002-06-30 Decades of Western Cold War propaganda were designed to depict socialism as inimical to genuine aesthetic achievement Now in the wake of the Cold War it is becoming possible to reassess the past and present cultural productions of artists with socialist inclinations The essays in this volume begin such a reassessment finding that socialist cultural production in the 20th century both as the official culture of the socialist East and as an oppositional culture in the capitalist West has been rich and varied The volume focuses on socialist culture in the industrialized world primarily Eastern Europe and the West An introductory essay overviews socialist cultural productions of the 20th century while the chapters that follow address a wide range of topics These include Soviet socialist realist fiction and film musicals the socialist drama of Bertolt Brecht and British and American leftist fiction The volume demonstrates that propagandistic Cold War depictions of socialism as a threat to artistic expression were inaccurate and misleading A History of Russian Literature Andrew Kahn, Mark Lipovetsky, Irina Reyfman, Stephanie Sandler, 2018-04-05 Russia possesses one of the richest and most admired literatures of Europe reaching back to the eleventh century A History of Russian Literature provides a comprehensive account of Russian writing from its earliest origins in the monastic works of Kiev up to the present day still rife with the creative experiments of post Soviet literary life The volume proceeds chronologically in five parts extending from Kievan Rus in the 11th century to the present day The coverage strikes a balance between extensive overview and in depth thematic focus Parts are organized thematically in chapters which a number of keywords that are important literary concepts that can serve as connecting motifs and case studies in depth discussions of writers institutions and texts that take the reader up close and Visual material also underscores the interrelation of the word and image at a number of points particularly significant in the medieval period and twentieth century The History addresses major continuities and discontinuities in the history of Russian literature across all periods and in particular bring out trans historical features that contribute to the notion of a national literature The volume s time range has the merit of identifying from the early modern period a vital set of national stereotypes and popular folklore about boundaries space Holy Russia and the charismatic king that offers culturally relevant material to later writers This volume delivers a fresh view on a series of key questions about Russia s literary history by providing new mappings of literary history and a narrative that pursues key concepts rather more than individual authorial careers This holistic narrative underscores the ways in which context and text are densely woven in Russian literature and demonstrates that the most exciting way to understand the canon and the development of tradition is through a discussion of the interrelation of major and minor figures historical events and literary politics literary theory and literary innovation

Realism's Others Eva Aldea, Geoffrey Baker, 2010-07-12 For at least a century scholarship on realist narrative and occasional polemics against realist narrative have assumed that realism promotes the values of sameness against those of otherness and that it does so by use of a narrative mode that excludes certain epistemologies ideologies and ways of thinking However the truth is more complex than that as the essays in this volume all demonstrate Realism's Others examines the various strategies by which realist narratives create the idea of difference whether that difference is registered in terms of class ethnicity epistemology nationality or gender The authors in this collection examine in detail not just the fact of otherness in some canonical realist and canonical magical realist and postmodern novels but the actual means by which that otherness is established by the text These essays suggest that neither realist narrative nor narratives positioned as anti realist take otherness for granted rather the texts discussed here actively create difference and this creation of difference often occasions severe difficulties for the novels representational schema How does one represent different types of knowledge other aesthetic modes or other spaces for example in texts whose epistemology has long been seen as secular and empirical whose aesthetic mode has always been approached as pure descriptive mimesis and whose settings are largely domestic These essays all begin with a certain collision of nationalities of classes of representational matrices of religions and go on to chart the challenges that this collision presents to our ideas or stereotypes of realism or to the possibilities of writing against and beyond realism This question motivates examination of key realist or social realist texts in some of these essays by Honoré de Balzac George Eliot Franz Grillparzer Theodor Storm Gottfried Keller Theodor Fontane Wilhelm Raabe María Amparo Ruiz de Burton Henry James William Dean Howells Charles Chesnutt Theodore Dreiser H T Tsiang Alan Sillitoe and Richard Yates However it is no less central a question in certain non realist texts which engage realist aims to a surprising degree often to debate them openly some of these essays discuss in this light fantastic magical realist and postmodern works by Abram Tertz Paul Auster Alejo Carpentier Toni Morrison Gabriel García Márquez Salman Rushdie and A S Byatt Realism becomes more than an aesthetic aim or narrative mode It becomes rather a value evoked and discussed by all of the works analyzed here in order to reveal its impact on fiction's treatment of ethnicity nationality ideology space gender and social class

Eugene O'Neill's America John Patrick Diggins,2008-09-15 In the face of seemingly relentless American optimism Eugene O'Neill's plays reveal an America many would like to ignore a place of seething resentments aching desires and family tragedy where failure and disappointment are the norm and the American dream a chimera Though derided by critics during his lifetime his works resonated with audiences won him the Nobel Prize and four Pulitzer and continue to grip theatergoers today Now noted historian John Patrick Diggins offers a masterly biography that both traces O'Neill's tumultuous life and explains the forceful ideas that form the heart of his unflinching works Diggins paints a richly detailed portrait of the playwright's life from his Irish roots and his early years at sea to his relationships with his troubled mother and brother Here we see O'Neill as a young Greenwich Village radical a ravenous autodidact who attempted to understand the disjunction between the sunny public face of American life and the rage that he knew was simmering beneath According to Diggins O'Neill mined this disjunction like no other American writer His characters burn with longing for an idealized future composed of equal parts material success and individual freedom but repeatedly they fall back to earth pulled by the tendrils of family and the insatiability of desire Drawing on thinkers from Emerson to Nietzsche O'Neill viewed this endlessly frustrated desire as the problematic core of American democracy simultaneously driving and undermining American ideals of progress success and individual freedom Melding a penetrating assessment of O'Neill's works and thought with a sensitive recreation of his life Eugene O'Neill's America offers a striking new view of America's greatest playwright and a new picture of American democracy itself
