Service-Learning to Advance Access & Success

Travis T. York,Alan S. Tinkler,Barri E. Tinkler,2018-11-01 Throughout the 90s and early 2000s service learning research was intensely focused on the student outcomes That body of research has effectively brought service learning from the fringes into the mainstream of institutionalized pedagogies In the past decade service learning research has experienced an infusion of exploration in three distinct ways first large scale quantitative methodologies second a proliferation of research that has explored how different sub groups of students experience the pedagogy differently thusly resulting in variation among outcomes and third a focus on the experiences and outcomes associated for communities and community partners engaged in service learning In an effort to support these movements this volume of the Advances in Service Learning Research series Service Learning to Advance Access Success Bridging Institutional and Community Capacity focuses on how service learning can advance access and success Not simply access and success of students but the ways that service learning can advance access and success for all through bridging institutional and community capacity building The chapters in this volume serve as a testament to the ways in which service learning research continue to be advanced by thoughtful scholar practitioners The 12 chapters included in this volume are organized into three sections The first section focuses on how institutional and community partnerships can be leveraged to build community capacity The second section focuses on how institutions might build their own capacity to effect change for the good of society The third and final section focuses on six studies exploring the relationship service learning pedagogy has with access and success for students Of the six studies three are situated within the context of teacher preparation programs

Civic Engagement and Technical Communication James M. Dubinsky, J. Harrison Carpenter, 2023-04-14 This special issue on civic engagement and technical communication focuses on the ways educators can help students become actively engaged members of society particularly a rhetorical democracy The first essay examines the concept of community as a locus for civic engagement and question some of the definitions of community seen embedded in current pedagogical practices The next article seeks to shape understanding of practice The tension of developing students civic awareness and engagement is the topic of the third paper The fourth article helps students gain skills and organization awareness and improves the perceived relevance of the work The final two essays approach the issue of civic engagement from slightly different angles one examining the role of teacher as both rhetor and instructor and the other looking to the past for possible solutions for the future By continuing the conversation about the relationship between technical communication and the public good and focusing specifically on pedagogical strategies and their theoretical and historical underpinnings the authors in this special issue clarify roles that technical communication and technical communicators play in civil society as well as ways curricula can be shaped to prepare students to fill those roles

Reconceptualizing Faculty Development in Service-Learning/Community Engagement Becca Berkey, Emily Eddins Rountree, Patrick M. Green, Cara Meixner, 2023-07-03 The role of educational developer in the realm of service learning and community engagement. S LCE is multidimensional. Given the potentially transformational nature for both faculty and students of the experiences and courses in whose design they may be directly or indirectly involved as well as their responsibility to the communities served by these initiatives, they have to be particularly attentive to issues of identity, values, and roles. As both practitioners and facilitators, they are often positioned as third space professionals. This edited volume provides educational developers and community engagement professionals an analysis of approaches to faculty development around service learning and community engagement. Using an openly self-reflective approach, the contributors to this volume offer an array of examples and models as well as realistic strategies to empower readers to evolve their faculty development efforts in service learning and community engagement on their respective campuses. It is also a call for recognition that the practice of S LCE needs to be institutionalized and improved. The book further addresses the field's potential contributions to scholarship such as the scholarship of teaching and learning, SoTL, publicly engaged scholarship, and collaborative inquiry among others. The case studies provide an outline of program models and promising practices, including an authentic analysis of the institutional context within which they operate, the positionality of the practitioner-scholars overseeing them, the resources required, and the evidence related to both successes and challenges of these approaches. The contributed chapters are organized under four themes: the landscape of faculty development and community engagement, models of faculty development in S LCE, challenges and opportunities in pedagogy and partnerships, and engendering change in educational development.
