Untimely Interventions Leigh Ross Chambers,2009-12-22 As atrocity has become characteristic of modern history testimonial writing has become a major twentieth century genre Untimely Interventions relates testimonial writing or witnessing to the cultural situation of aftermath exploring ways in which a culture can be haunted by its own history Ross Chambers argues that culture produces itself as civilized by denying the forms of collective violence and other traumatic experience that it cannot control In the context of such denial personal accounts of collective disaster can function as a form of counter denial By investigating a range of writing on AIDS the First World War and the Holocaust Chambers shows how such writing produces a rhetorical effect of haunting as it seeks to describe the reality of those experiences culture renders unspeakable Ross Chambers is Professor of Romance Languages at the University of Michigan His other books include Facing It AIDS Diaries and the Death of the Author

from Ballad of a Thin Man If Lennon's song is taken seriously literally then it is a dark crying out by a suicidal man Lord I'm lonely wanna die or if taken as a metaphor for a lover's lost feelings about his unfulfilled love it falls into the romantic rant of a typical blues or teenage rock and roll song However even on this level it has an irony about it a sense of laughing at itself and at Dylan's Mr Jones who knows something is going on but just not what it is and then by extension all of us who have awakened to the fact that the studied Western world doesn't make sense all of us who struggle to find meaning in the nonsense images characters and happenings in the song and perhaps coming to a conclusion that the nonsense is the sense
