The Future of Predictive Safety Evaluation A.N. Worden,D.V. Parke,J. Marks,2012-12-06 Reproduction and fetal development in humans and experimental animals may be adversely affected by a wide range of drugs and environmental agents They may be toxic in the parental generation leading to impaired germ cell formation loss of reproductive potential and infertility following chronic exposure Deviant fetal development occurs as a consequence of cellular damage at sensitive stages in development Changes seen range from intrauterine mortality and structural malformation to growth retardation with physiological and behavioural defects Concepts on the mechanism of action of teratogens are discussed with reference to some better known agents Presently regulatory authorities prefer whole animal studies in predictive safety evaluation of substances to which a pregnant woman may be exposed Tests are conducted over one or more generations and are designed to study the influence of test compounds upon general reproductive performance fertility fetal development and perinatal and postnatal behaviour Experiments are designed to permit compounds to be tested under conditions resembling expected human exposure Small rodents and rabbits are preferred species on account of their convenience as laboratory animals and the available knowledge regarding their reproductive behaviour fetal development and known sensitivity to human teratogens

Pharmaceutical Companies Bert Spilker,1994 Improving the Regulatory Review Process: Assessing Performance and Setting Targets N. McAuslane,S.R. Walker,2012-12-06 At a time when it is becoming usual for medicines to be developed for a global market and pharmaceutical companies are endeavouring to expedite the drug development process Regulatory Authorities are concentrating on improving their efficiency and effectiveness Therefore it is not surprising that questions are being asked as to how performance might be measured and compared between different authorities who are now often in receipt of dossiers that have been submitted to several agencies at the same time Issues such as what target should be set for the review of new medicines and how can quality be assured are now considered to be of critical importance The twelfth CMR International Workshop held in January 1997 provided the opportunity for Regulatory Authority and industry personnel from Europe North America Australia and Japan to openly discuss experiences and exchange views on how to improve the review process The proceedings of this meeting provide a comprehensive overview of the current review process in different countries and the need for performance measures and targets This volume summarises the many suggestions that were debated at the Workshop and includes chapters on measuring performance and on the integration of quality into the review process Psychopharmacology Abstracts ,1965 Safety Evaluation of Biotechnologically-derived Pharmaceuticals Susan A. Griffiths,C. Lumley,2012-12-06 Considerable investment has been made by both pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies in pharmaceutical products of biotechnology However because relatively few of these products have been marketed lack of relevant experience means that uncertainty still surrounds the most appropriate strategy for their safety evaluation The 13th CMR International Workshop held in February 1997 provided the opportunity for regulatory authority and industry experts from Europe Japan and the USA to share their experiences of designing safety evaluation programmes for specific product classes colony stimulating factors growth factors hormones interferons interleukins monoclonal antibodies for therapeutic use and gene therapy products Participants worked together to recommend those studies that should be considered for such safety evaluation and those that may be unnecessary These recommendations subsequently made a valuable contribution to the ICH guideline Safety Studies for Biotechnological Products which was finalised at ICH 4 in Brussels in July 1997 The Workshop proceedings not only describe the recommendations but also provide the reader with an appreciation of the science behind safety evaluation strategies used by experts the influence of different regulatory systems on these strategies and the type of data required by both toxicologists and clinicians before they have sufficient confidence to administer pharmaceutical products of biotechnology to humans

Improving the Regulatory Review Process C. Lumley,S.R. Walker,2012-12-06 Regulatory review is the last major development hurdle that must be passed by a new medicine before it reaches the market At a time when pharmaceutical companies are reviewing their R D strategies and attempting to reduce drug development times it is extremely important that the review process is made as efficient as possible The 11th CMR Workshop held in September 1995 provided the opportunity for regulatory authority and industry personnel from Europe North America Australia and Japan to openly discuss views and exchange experiences on the subject of improving the review process The proceedings of this meeting provide a comprehensive overview of the current review process around the world The contributors describe the present situation and highlight company strategies and regulatory initiatives to improve the review process This volume also summarises the suggestions that were developed by the participants covering many facets of this process including the quality and size of the dossier dialogue submission strategies feedback and the response to questions
