Monoclonal Antibodies and Immune Checkpoint Inhibitors in the treatment of Cancer Prakash Radhakrishnan, Cory L. Brooks, Murali M. Yallapu, 2025-01-13 Cancer is a complex disease that can evade the immune system's natural defenses However recent advancements in immunotherapy have revolutionized cancer treatment by using the body's own immune system to fight cancer Monoclonal antibodies mAbs and immune checkpoint inhibitors are two types of immunotherapy that have shown promise in treating various types of cancer Monoclonal antibodies are laboratory produced antibodies that are designed to recognize and target specific proteins on the surface of cancer cells These antibodies can be used alone or in combination with other therapies such as chemotherapy or radiation Monoclonal antibodies work by binding to cancer cells and blocking their ability to grow and divide or by marking them for destruction by the immune system For example trastuzumab Herceptin is a monoclonal antibody that targets HER2 positive breast cancer cells and can be used in combination with chemotherapy to improve survival rates

providing an in depth understanding of their functions Single cell sequencing also enables the monitoring of dynamic changes in cellular gene expression at different time points tracking the key molecular expression patterns during the inflammatory process Additionally in combination with spatial transcriptomics techniques single cell sequencing can analyze the spatial distribution of cells in tissues and their gene expression mapping out detailed cellular maps of inflammatory sites and identifying the cellular characteristics and interaction networks in different regions The latest technological developments also include the integrated analysis of multi omics data such as single cell ATAC seq DNA sequencing and proteomics providing more comprehensive cellular functional information and revealing the complex mechanisms of gene expression regulation Simultaneously the application of novel computational tools and algorithms enables researchers to extract meaningful biological information from complex data and uncover the key pathways and molecular mechanisms in inflammatory responses Therefore this Research Topic aims to showcase the latest progress of single cell sequencing technologies in inflammation research We invite researchers interested in this topic to submit original research brief research reports and review articles mainly but not limited to the following sub themes 1 New applications of single cell RNA sequencing in the study of inflammatory processes 2 Single cell epigenomics and transcriptomics in inflammatory diseases 3 Identification of key inflammatory mediators signaling pathways and immune cell heterogeneity at the single cell level 4 Interactions between immune and non immune cells in the inflammatory microenvironment 5 Identification of novel therapeutic targets and the development of personalized medical approaches for inflammatory diseases based on single cell analysis 6 Single cell analysis of drug responses and resistance mechanisms in inflammation 7 Innovations in single cell sequencing technologies related to inflammation research Please note that manuscripts consisting solely of bioinformatics or computational analysis of public genomic or transcriptomic databases which are not accompanied by robust and relevant validation clinical cohort or biological validation in vitro or in vivo are out of scope for this Research Topic
