Planning For Education In Pakistan:

Planning for Education in Pakistan Adam Curle, 1966 Educational planning for developing countries is a much more strenuous and unpredictable enterprise than its name suggests Among its hazards are the mental and physical strain including illness to which the foreign adviser is subject the often critical absence of data the instability of the economy and particularly the idiosyncrasies of politicians and administrators Through his own experience as a consultant to developing nations Mr Curle became intimately familiar with the problems and responsibilities of the foreign expert In his wryly realistic view the advisor far from being a remote and godlike figure is thrust in the middle of confusing and often frustrating conditions He emphasizes the need for wisdom and common sense on the advisers part and gives a thoroughly practical appraisal of what accomplishments can be reasonably expected Mr Curle deals extensively with the state of education in Pakistan where he was an adviser off and on for ten years Planning for Education in Pakistan Adam Curle, 1969

Rather than a generalized overview of Asians as a whole, this book has 24 separate chapters, each on 24 specific Asian countries, cultures of East, Southeast, and South Asia, with a wealth of resources for understanding, interacting with, and serving library users of each culture. Resources include cultural guides, both print and online, language helps with sample library vocabulary, Asian booksellers, nationwide cultural groups, professional literature, and more. Resources and suggestions are given for all three types of libraries: public, school, and academic, making this book valuable for all librarians. The demographics of each Asian culture, numbers, and distribution, plus history of immigration and international student enrollment, is also featured. As a bonus, each chapter spotlights a US public school and academic library providing model outreach to Asian library users. Additionally, this book provides a detailed description and analysis of libraries in each of the 24 Asian countries. The history, development, facilities, conditions, technology, classification systems, and more of public school and academic libraries are all discussed with detailed documentation. Country conditions influencing libraries and library use are also described. Literacy levels, reading cultures, languages, and writing systems, educational systems, and more. Based on the author's 15 years of research and travels to Asia, this work is a must-have for all librarians.
