

The image features a hand holding a glowing central node of a network diagram. The network consists of numerous smaller nodes connected by lines, radiating outwards from the central point held by the hand. The background is a blurred image of a person in a dark suit and tie. A black rectangular box is overlaid on the right side of the image, containing the text "NATIONAL TECHNOLOGY DAY" in a bold, white, stylized font.

Planning for National Technology Policy Richard Alan Goodman, Julian P. Morote, Julián Pavón, 1984      Integrated Technology Plan for the Civil Space Program United States. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 1991

Technology Transfer and Economic Growth in Sub-Sahara African Countries Nathaniel O. Agola, 2016-03-21 This book provides a pragmatic analytical model grounded on the solid idea that technologies and the accompanying implementation efforts only make sense if they are successfully deployed in markets The analytical model also provides an exhaustive analysis of all critical variables at the global regional and national levels which contribute to failure or success of technology transfer efforts The model is validated by an incisive analysis of technology transfer experiences of Japan Korea Singapore Taiwan province of China and Malaysia While this book finds that these East Asian countries have had both diverging and converging models and experiences with technology transfer the enduring and fundamental aspects of technology transfer in specific industrial sectors and economic growth in these countries is then used to draw lessons for African countries This book therefore is a timely and compelling piece of research work that provides valuable answers to the increasingly urgent question of how African countries can industrialize through technology transfer to meet their economic development and growth ideals      National Transportation Technology Plan National Science and Technology Council (U.S.).
