Plant Resources Of Arid And Semiarid Lands A Global Perspective:

Plant Resources of Arid and Semiarid Lands J. R. Goodin, David K. Northington, 2013-09-25 Plant Resources of Arid and Semiarid Lands A Global Perspective is a collection of papers that evaluates the existing native plant resources in the arid and semiarid regions. The papers deal with the resources found in these arid regions such as food potential forage fuel fiber medicinal or industrial uses. The book covers the arid regions of Africa Australia the Indian subcontinent Middle East North America China South America and the USSR. The treatment of these regions includes geographical descriptions such as area annual precipitation temperature humidity wind ranges or patterns and seasons. These papers also discuss the effects of topography on water drainage and loss the basic soil types holding capacity water runoffs and the availability of water surface and subsurface. The book examines the current and projected growth rates for relevant countries and dry regions in each continent. These papers discuss the economic output from arid lands the balance of trade current or developing resources as well as the prospects of these countries with dry regions. The book also focuses on the types of plants found in these regions whether these are used for food forage medicine or for industry. This collection is suitable for environmentalists ecologists sociologists anthropologists and researchers involved in biological and environmental conservation.

Ecophysiology of Economic Plants in Arid and Semi-Arid Lands Gerald E. Wickens, 2013-04-17 This book deals with arid and semi arid environments and their classification and the physiological restraints and adaptations of plants to the environment. Further it discusses economic botany and the needs and methods of conserving economic plants. A broad view is taken regarding the definition of economic plants taking into account their value to the environment as well as to man and to livestock. The individual deserts and associated semi arid regions are described in separate chapters providing background information on the regional environments in terms of climate and major plant formations. The economic plants within these formations their usages geographical distribution together with their morphological and physiological adaptations are treated in detail.

Agriculture in Dry Lands I. Arnon, 2012-12-02 Throughout history man has by over use consistently reduced the productive capacity of dry lands. This degradation of one third of the land area of the globe is unfortunately increasing. In recent years world interest has turned to the problems of pollution of the environment and the impending food shortage as world population grows explosively. Thus the attention of international and other agricultural bodies has turned to the need for preserving and developing more effectively the agricultural potential of these areas. This book provides a comprehensive review of present knowledge of the agriculture of dry lands with special emphasis on measures for conserving their natural resources. Management practices are described which aim at optimizing productivity of rainfed and irrigated agriculture without adverse effects on sustainability. Land use in the dry regions and its evolution throughout history is described and analysed and the lessons to be learnt from destructive technologies are stressed. In particular current proposals for an alternative agriculture are discussed and their justification is questioned. This is a generalist work which specialists can also find interesting not only in their own discipline but as a concise way of acquainting themselves with the state of the art in associated fields Increasing specialisation with each discipline using its own vocabulary leads inevitably to communication problems and the need for multi disciplinary teams makes inter discipline communication indispensable

Ecosystems of Disturbed Ground L.R. Walker,1999-12-17 As the human population inexorably grows its cumulative impact on the Earth's resources is hard to ignore The ability of the Earth to support more humans is dependent on the ability of humans to manage natural resources wisely Because disturbance alters resource levels effective management requires understanding of the ecology of disturbance This book is the first to take a global approach to the description of both natural and anthropogenic disturbance regimes that physically impact the ground Natural disturbances such as erosion volcanoes wind herbivory flooding and drought plus anthropogenic disturbances such as forestry grazing mining urbanization and military actions are considered Both disturbance impacts and the biotic recovery are addressed as well as the interactions of different types of disturbance Other chapters cover processes that are important to the understanding of disturbance of all types including soil processes nutrient cycles primary productivity succession animal behaviour and competition Humans react to disturbances by avoiding exacerbating or restoring them or by passing environmental legislation All of these issues are covered in this book Managers need better predictive models and robust data collections that help determine both site specific and generalized responses to disturbance Multiple disturbances have a complex effect on both physical and biotic processes as they interact This book provides a wealth of detail about the process of disturbance and recovery as well as a synthesis of the current state of knowledge about disturbance theory with extensive documentation

Land Observation by Remote Sensing Buiten,1994-03-07 Focusing on land objects this textbook for an advanced undergraduate or graduate course describes both the fundamentals of the theory of remote sensing as well as the application of this technique to the fields of agriculture forestry land use land evaluation agrohydrology irrigation nature conservation and environmental pollution control An updated translation of the 1990 Dutch edition Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR

Somatic Embryogenesis in Woody Plants S.M. Jain,P.K. Gupta,R.J. Newton,2013-11-11 The quality of human life has been maintained and enhanced for generations by the use of trees and their products. In recent years, ever rising human population growth has put a tremendous pressure on trees and tree products. Growing awareness of the potential of previously unexploited tree resources and environmental pollution have both accelerated the development of new technologies for tree propagation, breeding and improvement. Biotechnology of trees may be the answer to solve the problems which can not be solved by conventional breeding methods. The combination of biotechnology and conventional methods such as plant propagation and breeding may be a novel approach to improving and multiplying a large number of the trees and woody plants. So far, plant tissue culture technology has largely been exploited by commercial companies in propagation of ornamentals, especially foliage house plants. Generally, tissue culture of woody plants has been recalcitrant. However, limited success has been achieved in tissue culture of angiosperm and gymnosperm woody plants. A number of recent reports on somatic embryogenesis in woody plants such as Norway spruce Picea abies, Loblolly pine Pinus taeda, Sandalwood Santalum album, Citrus, mango, Mangifera indica etc. offer a ray of hope of an inexpensive clonal propagation for large scale production of plants or seedlings. b protoplast work c cryopreservation d genetic transformation and e synthetic or artificial or manufactured seed production

Arid Lands Charles Hutchinson, 2019-04-23 The international conference Arid Lands Today and Tomorrow drew more than 400 participants from over 30 countries to Tucson, Arizona for one week in October of 1985. The diversity of presenters, disciplines and subject matters addressed contributed to an interesting and informative conference. The papers presented in this volume represent the efforts of scientists and other individuals who through their various disciplines are addressing the problems and opportunities presented by the arid lands of the world. A committee of five scientists reviewed for substance, relevance and their contribution to the conference the 284 abstracts that were submitted. They selected 146 for presentation at the conference and of those papers presented, 128 were received for inclusion in the proceedings.

Vegetation science applications for rangeland analysis and management P.T. Tueller, 2012-12-06 Natural grasslands, pastures and meadows are among the vegetation types most frequently investigated with phytosociological methods. This was one of the reasons why volume 13, Application of vegetation science to grassland husbandry and agriculture, edited by W. Krause, appeared as one of the first volumes of this handbook. It appeared under the chief editorship of Prof. R. Tiessen and in his time, the main emphasis of the handbook was placed on Zurich-Montpellier methods and the European vegetation. When we redesigned the handbook, we felt the need to include other methods and aims of grassland analyses as well as a more global coverage of grasslands. Especially the natural dry and semidry areas of the world needed to be covered. We were very fortunate in getting Prof. Tueller of the University of Reno, Nevada, as an editor for this volume. He and the colleagues he motivated to compile volume 14, Application of vegetation science to rangeland analysis and management, have created a truly global coverage of the topics interesting for vegetation analyses in natural grasslands. Since volume 13 covered the problems of anthropogenically created grasslands, this topic was not expressly treated in order to avoid duplication For the same reason no specific attempt was made to get more papers from Europe and the temperate forest region in general The cooperation with Dr Tueller has been very rewarding for me
