Writing Home Elmer Kennedy-Andrews, 2008 The idea of place and of being displaced is a powerful leit motif in Northern Irish poetry It is here explored in depth from the 1960s to the present day Ideas of home place and identity have been continually questioned re imagined and re constructed in Northern Irish poetry Concentrating on the period since the outbreak of the Troubles in the late 1960s this study provides a detailed consideration of the work of several generations of poets from Hewitt and MacNeice to Fiacca and Montague to Simmons Heaney Mahon and Longley to Muldoon Carson Paulin and McGuckian to McDonald Morrissey Gillis and Flynn It traces the extent to which their writing represents a move away from concepts of rootedness and towards a deterritorialized poetics of displacement mobility openness and pluralism in an era of accelerating migration and globalisation In the new readings of place inherited maps are no longer reliable and home is no longer the stable ground of identity but seems instead to be always where it is not The crossing of boundaries and the experience of diaspora open up new understandings of the relations between places a new sense of the permeability and contingency of cultures and new concepts of identity and home Professor ELMER KENNEDY ANDREWS teaches in the Department of English at the University of Ulster

Human Sacrifice in Ancient Greece Dennis D. Hughes, 2013-01-11 Numerous ancient texts describe human sacrifices and other forms of ritual killing in 480 BC Themistocles sacrifices three Persian captives to Dionysus human scapegoats called pharmakoi are expelled yearly from Greek cities and according to some authors they are killed Locrian girls are hunted down and slain by the Trojans on Mt Lykaion children are sacrificed and consumed by the worshippers and many other texts report human sacrifices performed regularly in the cult of the gods or during emergencies such as war and plague Archaeologists have frequently proposed human sacrifice as an explanation for their discoveries from Minoan Crete children's bones with knife cut marks the skeleton of a youth lying on a platform with a bronze blade resting on his chest skeletons sometimes bound in the dromoi of Mycenaean and Cypriot chamber tombs and dual man woman burials where it is suggested that the woman was slain or took her own life at the man's funeral If the archaeologists' interpretations and the claims in the ancient sources are accepted they present a bloody and violent picture of the religious life of the ancient Greeks from the Bronze Age well into historical times But the author expresses caution In many cases alternative if less sensational explanations of the archaeological are possible and it can often be shown that human sacrifices in the literary texts are mythical or that late authors confused mythical details with actual practices Whether the evidence is accepted or not this study offers a fascinating glimpse into the religious thought of the ancient Greeks and into changing modern conceptions of their religious behaviour Haven of Darkness E.C.
