John Crank, Colleen Kadleck

Policing For A New South Africa:

Policing for a New South Africa Mike Brogden, Clifford D. Shearing, 2005-08-04 The state police force of South Africa has acquired massive notoriety since its formation Its officers have developed a reputation for routinely provoking violence and torturing suspects As the key bastion of apartheid it is in urgent need of change In Policing for a New South Africa Mike Brogden and Clifford Shearing evaluate the options for change They critically analyse orthodox policing ideas imported from the West and contrast them with the indigenous model of independent policing from the townships of South Africa itself Together they offer significant possibilities for the future Importantly they suggest that rather than South Africans import ideas wholesale from the West the latter countries in the light of the failures of their own police systems have much to learn from South Africa

Policing for a New South Africa Mike Brogden, Clifford D. Shearing, 2005-08-04 Brogden is an international expert on police accountability and colonial police systems see below Shearing is a member of the Police Board of South Africa

Policing Developing Democracies Mercedes S. Hinton, Tim Newburn, 2008-09-25 There are enormous challenges in establishing policing systems in young democracies Such societies typically have a host of unresolved pressing social economic and political questions that impinge on policing and the prospects for reform There are a series of hugely important questions arising in this context to do with the emergence of the new security agenda the problems of transnational crime and international terrorism the rule of law and the role of the police security services and the military This is a field that is not only of growing academic interest but is now the focus of a very significant police reform industry Development agencies and entrepreneurs are involved around the globe in attempts to establish democratic police reforms in countries with little or no history of such activity Consequently there is a growing literature in this field but as yet no single volume that brings together the central developments This book gathers together scholars from political science international relations and criminology to focus on the issues raised by policing within developing democracies examining countries in Eastern Europe Asia South America and Africa

Securing South Africa's Democracy G. Cawthra, 1997-07-16 This book examines the defence and security challenges facing the new South Africa in the context of development and nation building priorities The transformation of security policy during the transition from apartheid and since the April 1994 elections is examined Challenges facing the defence force and the police service are examined and the relationships between defence development and domestic and external security are explored in an integrated way which points to a policy framework for security in the developing world

Policing: Toward an Unknown Future John Crank, Colleen Kadleck, 2013-12-16 The enclosed papers are the culmination of a project Dr John Crank and Dr Colleen Kadleck carried out assessing issues facing the police into the early 21st century The papers are future oriented in the sense that they anticipate trends visible today Everywhere the contributing scholars found that the organizational concept practice and function of the police were undergoing transition Yet the seeming state level hardening of the police function was ubiquitous Two themes were noteworthy On the one hand in developing or second world countries police face endemic problems of corruption organized crime and drugs Police in response are undergoing centralization and intensification of law enforcement activities In countries with first world economies Canada the United States and Australia contributors discovered trends toward expansion of the police function a trend described by Brodeur as toward high policing It reflects the growing reliance on surveillance for crime control and for the tracking of minority indigenous and immigrant populations in crime prevention efforts The results suggest that governments sometimes encouraged by their citizenry seem increasingly to rely on the police to deal with a broad array of social as well as criminal problems This book was originally published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research

Policing and Boundaries in a Violent Society Guy Lamb, 2022-01-31

This book explores how social and territorial boundaries have influenced the approaches and practices of the South Africa Police Service SAPS By means of a historical analysis of South Africa this book introduces a new concept police frontierism which illuminates the nature of the relationships between the police policing and boundaries and can potentially be used for future case study research Drawing on a wealth of research this book examines how social and territorial boundaries strongly influenced police practices and behaviour in South Africa and how social delineations amplify and distort existing police prejudices against those communities on the other side of the boundary Focusing on cases of high density police operations public order policing and the recent policing of the COVID 19 lockdown this book argues that poor economic conditions combined with an increased militarisation of the SAPS and a decline in public trust in the police will result in boundaries continuing to fundamentally inform police work in South Africa This book will be of interest to scholars and students interested in policing in post colonial societies characterised by high levels of violence as well as police work and police militarization

Policing and Human Rights Julia Hornberger, 2011-10-21 Policing and Human Rights analyses the implementation of human rights standards tracing them from the nodal points of their production in Geneva through the board rooms of national police management and training facilities to the streets of downtown Johannesburg This book deals with how the unprecedented influence of human rights combined with the inability by police officers to live up to international standards has created a range of policing and human rights vernaculars hybrid discourses that have appropriated transmogrified and undercut human rights Understood as an attempt by police officers as much as by the police as a whole to recover a position from which to act and to judge these vernaculars reveal the compromised ways in which human rights are and are not implemented Tracing how in South Africa human rights have given rise to new forms of popular justice informal private policing and provisional security arrangements Policing and Human Rights delivers an important analysis of how the dissemination and implementation of human rights intersects with the post colonial and post transformation circumstances that characterise many countries in the South Community Policing Dominique Wisler, Ihekwoaba D. Onwudiwe, 2009-06-10 Community oriented policing COP is the ideology and policy model espoused in the mission statements of nearly all policing forces throughout the world However the COP philosophy is interpreted differently by different countries and police forces resulting in practices that may in fact run far afield of the community based themes of partnership

Challenges of Policing Democracies Dilip Das, Marenin Otwin, 2012-10-12 In this text the editors analyze the diverse situations that police forces operate under and the challenges that they face in different kinds of democracies This cross cultural comparison of various systems highlights the universal observation that police are a anomaly in a democracy and explores how various influences for example large scale social violence a zeal for crime fighting and vulnerability to temptation often find police incapable of behaving in a democratic manner Challenges of Policing Democracies goes beyond just showing the similarities and differences of the policing challenges democratic societies face it also examines the responses and remedies adopted by police in various countries at different levels of democratic achievement and how every society struggles with the challenges of preserving democratic values without sacrificing the effectiveness of policing Policing Post-Conflict Cities Alice Hills,2013-07-04 How and why does order emerge after conflict What does it mean in the context of the twenty first century post colonial city From Kabul Kigali and Kinshasa to Baghdad and Basra people abandoned by the state make their own rules With security increasingly ghettoised survival becomes a matter of manipulation and hustling In this book Alice Hills discusses the interface between order and security While analysts and donors emphasise security Hills argues that order is much more meaningful for people s lives Focusing on the police as both providers of order and a measure of its success the book shows that order depends more on what has gone before than on reconstruction efforts and that tension is inevitable as donors attempt to reform brutal local policing Policing Post Conflict Cities provides a powerful critique of the failure of liberal orthodoxy to understand the meaning of order

Democracy, Society and the Governance of Security Jennifer Wood, Benoît Dupont, 2006-02-23 The promotion of security is no longer a state monopoly It is dispersed and takes place through the practices of states corporations non governmental actors and community based organizations But what do we know about the ways in which security is thought about and promoted in this pluralized field of delivery Are democratic values being advanced and protected or threatened and compromised Wood and Dupont bring together a team of renowned scholars to shed light on our understanding of the arrangements for contemporary security governance Offering a friendly dialogue between those who argue that democratic transformation rests in the development of strong state institutions and those who propose a more de centered agenda the scholars in this volume bring cutting edge theoretical analyses to bear on empirical examples This volume will appeal to researchers in the fields of criminology political science sociology and security studies
