Political economy, in its various guises and transfigurations, is a research philosophy that presents both social commentary and theoretical progress and is concerned with a number of different topics: politics, regulation and governance, production systems, social relations, inequality and development amongst many others. As a critical theory, political economy seeks to provide an understanding of societies – and of the structures and social relations that form them – in order to evoke social change towards more equitable conditions.

Despite the early influence of critical development studies and political economy on tourism research, political economy has received relatively little attention in tourism research. Political Economy and Tourism is the first volume to bring together different theoretical perspectives and discourse in political economy related to tourism. Written by leading scholars, the text is organized into three sequential parts, linked by the principle that ‘the political’ and ‘the economic’ are intimately connected. Part I presents different approaches to political economy, including Marxist political economy, regulation, comparative political economy, commodity chain research and alternative political economies; Part II links key themes of political economy, such as class, gender, labour, development and consumption, to tourism; and Part III examines the political economy at various geographical scales and focuses on the outcomes and processes of the political act of planning and managing tourism production.

This engaging volume provides insights and alternative critical perspectives on political economy theory to expand discussions of tourism development and policy in the future. Political Economy and Tourism is a valuable text for students, researchers and academics interested in tourism and related disciplines.

trust have been left out by the majority of studies on this topic. It is also important that SET is complemented with other theoretical approaches so that new insights are uncovered in this area of study. Grounded in political economy, this study attempted to make a complete use of SET by integrating its key components: trust, power, benefits, costs, and support in a model that predicted residents' trust in government actors involved in tourism and their political support for the sector's development. The research drew widely from the political science literature and made use of two competing theories to investigate the determinants of residents' trust in government actors: institutional theory of political trust and cultural theory of political trust. Based on the three different theories (SET, institutional theory of political trust, and cultural theory of political trust), the conceptual model of the study was developed.

Neoliberalism and the Political Economy of Tourism Jan Mosedale, 2016-03-10. Tourism has become increasingly shaped by neoliberal policies, yet the consequences of this neoliberalisation are relatively underexplored. This book provides a wide-ranging inquiry into the particular manifestations of different variants of neoliberalism, highlighting its uneven geographical development and the changing dynamics of neoliberal policies in order to explain and evaluate the effects of neoliberal processes on tourism. Covering a variety of different aspects of neoliberalism and tourism, the chapters investigate how different types of tourism are used as part of more general neoliberalisation agendas, how neoliberalism differs according to the geographic context, the importance of discourse in shaping neoliberal practices, and the different approaches of putting the neoliberal ideology into practice. Aiming to initiate debates about the connections between neoliberalism and tourism and advance further research avenues, this book makes a timely contribution which discusses the relationships between markets, nation states, and societies from a social science perspective. Neoliberalism is considered as a political economic ideology, as variants of the global neoliberal project, as discourse and practices through which neoliberalism is enacted.

Future Tourism James Leigh, Craig Webster, Stanislav Ivanov, 2013. The book draws on the views of leading thinkers in Tourism and considers a broad range of issues from multidisciplinary perspectives facing the Tourism industry for the first time in one volume: dwindling energy, new technology, security like war and terrorism, political economy, sustainability, and human resources. By critically reviewing these social and economic challenges in a global scale, the book helps to create a comprehensive view of future tourism in the unfolding and challenging society of the third millennium.

Created Vulnerabilities: Political Economy of Tourism Development in Sharm El Sheikh Catherine Walsh, 2019. Abstract: Sharm El Sheikh represents the typical tourism enclave removed from the local culture and environment, homogenous with other destinations in the global south and designed to serve the vacationing needs of mass tourism. This form of tourism development is dated and set to fail, particularly when challenged with political instability and violence. Literature on mass tourism to the global south focuses on structural dependency of resorts but often fails to complicate this relationship with internal political decision making. This qualitative case study examines the development of the resort to cater to the desires of the mass tourism model. The socio-economic dependency of the space on the state and global tourism dynamics the exclusion of the local population and the complicated security crisis in the peninsula are analyzed as they remain significant challenges to future recovery of this resort
