Handbook of Education Policy Research Gary Sykes, Barbara Schneider, David N. Plank, 2012-09-10 Co published by Routledge for the American Educational Research Association AERA Educational policy continues to be of major concern Policy debates about economic growth and national competitiveness for example commonly focus on the importance of human capital and a highly educated workforce Defining the theoretical boundaries and methodological approaches of education policy research are the two primary themes of this comprehensive AERA sponsored Handbook Organized into seven sections the Handbook focuses on 1 disciplinary foundations of educational policy 2 methodological perspectives 3 the policy process 4 resources management and organization 5 teaching and learning policy 6 actors and institutions and 7 education access and differentiation Drawing from multiple disciplines the Handbook s over one hundred authors address three central questions What policy issues and questions have oriented current policy research What research strategies and methods have proven most fruitful And what issues questions and methods will drive future policy research Topics such as early childhood education school choice access to higher education teacher accountability and testing and measurement cut across the 63 chapters in the volume The politics surrounding these and other issues are objectively analyzed by authors and commentators Each of the seven sections concludes with two commentaries by leading scholars in the field The first considers the current state of policy design and the second addresses the current state of policy research This book is appropriate for scholars and graduate students working in the field of education policy and for the growing number of academic government and think tank researchers engaged in policy research For more information on the American Educational Research Association please visit <http://www.aera.net>

Mediation in Political Conflicts Jacques Faget, 2011-04-28 This book provides a vivid reader on experiences of mediation throughout history and in many different regional cultural and legal contexts For experts in the field of mediation and legal anthropology it provides a series of fascinating case studies not previously reported on For those not familiar with the field it provides a window on an alternative possibility for peacemaking in political conflicts The book is held together by the editor's introduction which defines political mediation the research methodologies employed the relationship of mediation to participatory democracy and the growth of mediation in the past twenty years The chapters which follow provide the anatomy of successful and unsuccessful mediations in contexts as widely diverse as the 30 Years War 1618-1648 which was ended following the intercession of the future Pope Alexander VII Three further chapters examine the role of the Catholic Church in other mediations in the Basque conflict in Burundi and in Chiapas while a further group of chapters looks at conflicts in Ethiopia Northern Ireland Central America and Congo

The Struggle for Redress Jessie Barton-Hronešová, 2020-08-05 This book explores pathways to redress for main groups of victims survivors of the 1992-5 Bosnian war families of missing persons victims of torture survivors of sexual violence and victims suffering physical disabilities and harm The author traces the history of redress making for each of these groups and shows how differently they have been treated by Bosnian authorities at the state and subnational level In Bosnia and Herzegovina thousands of war victims have had to suffer re-traumatizing ordeals in order to secure partial redress for their suffering during 1992-1995 and after While some such as victims of sexual violence have been legally recognised and offered financial and service based compensation others such as victims of torture have been recognized only recently with a clear geographical limitation The main aim of the book is to explore the politics behind recognizing victimhood and awarding redress in a country that has been divided by instrumentalized identity cleavages widespread patronage and debilitating war legacies It shows how war victims survivors navigate such fragmented and challenging public landscape in order to secure their rights

The Equitable Forest Carol J. Pierce Colfer, 2010-09-30 While there continues to be refinement in defining and assessing sustainable management there remains the urgent need for policies that create the conditions that support sustainability and can halt or slow destructive practices already underway Carol Colfer and her contributors maintain that standardized solutions to forest problems from afar have failed to address both human and environmental needs Such approaches they argue often neglect the knowledge that local stakeholders have accumulated over generations as forest managers and do not address issues involving the diversity and well being of groups within communities The contributors note that these problems persist despite clear evidence that equity and social relationships including gender roles are important factors in the ways that communities adapt to change and manage forest resources overall The Equitable Forest offers an alternative to traditional externally organized strategies for forest management Termed adaptive collaborative management ACM the approach tries to better acknowledge the diversity complexity and unpredictability of human and natural systems ACM works to strengthen local institutions and use the knowledge and capacity of groups in local communities to enhance the health and well being of both forests and the people who live in and around them The Equitable Forest provides a detailed explanation of the descriptive analytical and methodological tools of ACM along with accounts of early stages of its implementation in tropical regions of Asia Africa and Latin America Although the contributors make it clear that it is too soon to evaluate the efficacy of ACM their work is supported by evidence that rural communities do make important contributions when involved in formal forest management that management strategies are most effective when flexible and tailored to local contexts and that efforts by outside governmental and nongovernmental organizations to support local management are feasible from the policymaking perspective and desirable for their impact on human economic and environmental well being

Intellectual Property Theory and Practice Wenwei Guan, 2014-07-03 This book explains China's intellectual property perspective in the context of European theories through a critical examination of intellectual property theory and practice focused on China's compliance with the Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights TRIPS The author's critical review of contemporary intellectual property philosophy suggests that justifying intellectual property protection through Locke or Hegel's property theories internalizes a theoretical paradox Professor Wenwei Guan's treatment of intellectual property law and practice in the PRC offers new perspectives that enrich an already active field of study This book will be a useful contribution to academic and policy discourses examining conceptual and operational dimensions of China's intellectual property protection system and the broader process of China's international engagement Dr Pitman B Potter Professor of Law University of British Columbia Canada Dr Guan reminds us of the daunting challenge of the public private divide in forming and reforming TRIPS regime how this regime has failed to address development needs and public concerns in developing countries like China and how TRIPS's birth defect can be overcome and its evolution can be put back on the right track Dr Yahong Li Associate Professor at Faculty of Law Hong Kong University

Teaching Geneva Gay, 2010 The achievement of students of color continues to be disproportionately low at all levels of education More than ever Geneva Gay's foundational book on culturally responsive teaching is essential reading in addressing the needs of today's diverse student population Combining insights from multicultural education theory and research with real life classroom stories Gay demonstrates that all students will perform better on multiple measures of achievement when teaching is filtered through their own cultural experiences This bestselling text has been extensively revised to include expanded coverage of student ethnic groups African and Latino Americans as well as Asian and Native Americans as well as new material on culturally diverse communication addressing common myths about language diversity and the effects of English Plus instruction Ethical futures: bioscience and food horizons Kate Millar, Pru Hobson

West, Brigitte Nerlich, 2023-09-04 In an ever changing interconnected world the agriculture and food system faces constant challenges in many forms such as the impacts of climate change uncertainty surrounding the use of novel technologies and the emergence of new zoonotic diseases Alongside these challenges professionals working in the food system are faced with opportunities to improve food production and distribution As decision makers attempt to balance these threats and opportunities in order to secure more sustainable production systems the key question that arises is What do we envisage as the future for agriculture and food production With numerous voices advocating different and sometimes conflicting approaches ranging from organic farming to wider use of GMOs through in vitro meat production this discussion of the future raises significant ethical questions The contributions in this book bring together a diverse group of authors who explore a set of themes relating to the ethical dimensions of the agriculture and food futures including the role of novel technologies the potential issues raised by the use of biofuels the ethics of future animal production systems concepts of global food security as well as chapters on food governance priorities and educational aspects It is intended that this volume serves as an interesting collection and acts as a source of stimulation that will contribute to wider debate and reflection on the future of the agriculture and food system Exploring Education Alan R. Sadovnik, Peter Cookson, Jr., Susan Semel, Ryan Coughlan, 2017-10-10 This much anticipated fifth edition of Exploring Education offers an alternative to traditional foundations texts by combining a point of view analysis with primary source readings Pre and in service teachers will find a solid introduction to the foundations disciplines history philosophy politics and sociology of education and their application to educational issues including school organization and teaching curriculum and pedagogic practices education and inequality and school reform and improvement This edition features substantive updates including additions to the discussion of neo liberal educational policy recent debates about teacher diversity updated data and research and new selections of historical and contemporary readings At a time when foundations of education are marginalized in many teacher education programs and teacher education reform pushes scripted approaches to curriculum and instruction Exploring Education helps teachers to think critically about the what and why behind the most pressing issues in contemporary education Learning to Learn Ruth Deakin Crick, CRISTINA STRINGHER, Kai Ren, 2014-04-28 Learning to Learn provides a much needed overview and international guide to the field of learning to learn from a multidisciplinary lifelong and lifewide perspective A wealth of research has been flourishing on this key educational goal in recent years Internationally it is considered to be one of the key competencies needed to compete in the global economy but also a crucial factor for individual and social well being This book draws on leading international contributors to provide a cutting edge overview of current thinking on learning to learn research policy and implementation in both formal and informal learning environments But what learning to learn is exactly and what its constituting elements are are much debated issues These seem to be the crucial questions if assessment and development of this malleable side of intelligence are to be accomplished The approach of this volume is to consider a broad conception of learning to learn not confined to only study strategies or metacognition yet acknowledging the importance of such elements The book sets out to answer five main questions What is learning to learn What are its functions and how do we assess it What does it promise to the individual and society at large How is it conceived in national curricula internationally How can it be developed in a variety of contexts The text is organized into two parts the first addresses the core question of the nature of learning to learn from a theoretical and policy viewpoint and the second presents recent research carried out in several educational systems with special attention to assessment and curriculum It gives an account of pedagogical practices of learning to learn and its role in individual empowerment from childhood to adulthood Contributors also highlight the potential use of learning to learn as an organizing concept for lifelong learning school improvement and teacher training along with potential conflicts with existing incentive practices and policies This book is a vital starting point and guide for any advanced student or researcher looking to understand this important area of research

Rhetoric of the Greensboro Truth and Reconciliation Commission explores rhetorical attempts to authorize the Greensboro Truth and Reconciliation Commission a grassroots U S based truth commission created in 2004 to redress past injustices in the city Through detailed rhetorical analyses the book demonstrates that the development of the field of transitional justice has given rise to a transnational rhetorical tradition that provides those working in the field with series of enabling constraints The book then shows how Greensboro stakeholders attempted to reaccentuate this rhetorical tradition in their rhetorical performances to construct authority and bring about justice even as the tradition shaped their discourse in ways that limited the scope of their responses Calling attention to the rhetorical interdependence among practitioners of transitional justice this study offers insights into the development of transitional justice in the United States and in grassroots contexts in other liberal democracies The volume is a relevant guide to scholars and practitioners of transitional justice as it brings into relief mechanisms of transitional justice that are frequently overlooked namely rhetorical mechanisms It also speaks to any readers who may be interested in the communicative strategies tactics that may be employed by grassroots transitional justice initiatives
