Mortality in an International Perspective Jon Anson, Marc Luy, 2014-03-24 This volume presents a state of the art coverage of the measurement and evolution of mortality over time It describes in great detail the changes in the cause patterns of mortality the changes in mortality patterns at different ages and specific analyses of mortality in particular countries Derived from a meeting of the European Working Group on Health Morbidity and Mortality held at the Vienna Institute of Demography September 2011 it presents a cross section of the work and concerns of mortality researchers across Europe ranging from London and Madrid in the west to Moscow in the east with a few additions from further afield Although most of the papers focus on a particular population the range of the papers is broad taken together they present an inter disciplinary cross section of this multi faceted field Coverage includes estimating life expectancy in small areas with an application to recent changes in US counties socioeconomic determinants of mortality in Europe using the latest available data and short term forecasts predicting mortality from profiles of biological risk and performance measures of functioning infant mortality measurement and rate of progress on international commitment using evidence from Argentina avoidable factors contributing to maternal deaths in Turkey changes in mortality at older ages the case of Spain 1975 2006 variable scales of avoidable mortality within the Russian population long term mortality decline in East Asia and much more Perspectives in Mortality Research will serve as a valuable resource for professionals and students in sociology demography public health and personal finance Journal of Human Services Abstracts ,1984 Social Protection for Dependency in Old Age Jozef Pacolet,Ria Bouten,Katia Versieck,2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2000 An up to date overview of the systems of social protection for the elderly in the fifteen EU states and Norway The book also offers a comprehensive comparative analysis of the residential semi residential and community services available and explores the debates surrounding policy reform of the social protection system of dependent older persons Dilemmas of the Welfare Mix Ugo Ascoli,Costanzo Ranci,2013-04-17 The 1990 s will be remembered in Europe as the period in which privatization assumed significant proportions in the field of welfare policies In an age of crisis for the welfare state and increased demand of care services there is now a widespread opinion that future welfare systems will see more and more space occupied by private and nonprofit organizations taking the direct responsibility of providing services and meeting the needs of the clients A welfare mix is emerging as a system in which government private and nonprofit organizations operate in place of the state monopoly nonprofit organizations in particular have obtained formal recognition as partners of public authorities and professional groups in policy making An increasing interdependence between state private and third sector organizations will characterize next years all post industrial societies Through research in the field of social care in six European Countries France Germany Italy Norway Spain and the U K the authors highlight the role of nonprofit and commercial organizations in the new welfare mix systems and main social and institutional effects of such new order This volume in the Nonprofit and Civil Society Studies series is the first attempt to bridge the relevant gap existing between the literature on the welfare state and studies on the nonprofit sector Negotiating Change Carol Diane St Louis,2011

Throughout the last decades advanced industrial democracies have been confronted by the long term pressures of globalisation rising and persistent unemployment ageing populations rising health care costs and the severe but shorter term shocks of recession currency runs and other troubles The international political economy literature is rife with observations that states are under increasing pressure to reduce taxes and to trim their budgets and recent austerity efforts in Europe and the United States support the view that governments are responding to these intensifying economic and political incentives by constraining their spending. Simultaneously governments encounter political pressures to maintain or expand their social welfare safety nets in order to meet the needs of their most vulnerable populations the unemployed and underemployed the sick and disabled pensioners and the poor. Despite these common pressures there has been a great degree of divergence over the last decades. Variation endures in terms of the aggregate levels of taxation and expenditures and the distribution of costs and benefits among the citizenry. Reforms have differed in regard to whether they are approached in a confrontational manner by the government alone or in consensual negotiated process that includes the parliamentary opposition trade unions and employers associations. Some painful reforms have been met with massive strikes and protests while other painful reforms have been accepted with relative equanimity. Finally there has been a great deal of variance in the ability of various governments to adopt and implement their reform packages and to survive the potential backlash in response to these reforms. Considering the cases of France Italy and Germany during the 1990s this dissertation sheds new light on the factors determining the approach to reform the distribution of costs and benefits and the likelihood that governments will succeed in their attempts to adopt and implement reforms. Chapter 1 introduces the core questions presents a brief overview of the theory and explains the methodology and case selection. Chapter 2 develops a theoretical framework for understanding a the factors that lead governments to adopt a particular approach to a reform b the role that partisanship plays in determining the distributional implications of reform c the effect that the approach and the distributional implications of the reform have upon how the parliamentary opposition the social partners and the public respond to the reform and d the role that response plays in determining the ultimate fate of the reform and in some cases the fate of that government. Chapter 3 considers the experiences of France exploring the theory's ability to explain a case of a typical state facing conflicting economic and political pressures to reform its economic fiscal and social welfare policies. Chapter 4 tests the theory's applicability to Italy a country undergoing a particularly high level of economic and political stress. Chapter 5 focuses upon the apparently deviant case of Germany where both the reform approach and the distributional implications of the reform seem to run counter to the theory's predictions. Deep examination of the role of party factions and shifts in the balance of power within the governing coalition reveals the importance of considering the preferences of the reform leadership rather than the coalition as a whole in order to generate accurate predictions and interpretations. Chapter 6 concludes with an overview of generalisable conclusions and future research directions.

Improving Healthcare David Hyman, 2007-04-21. Improving Healthcare A Dose of Competition systematically examines the American health care system from a competition oriented perspective. The volume surveys the performance of each major sector of the health care system and identifies impediments to more effective competition.
