Larue, Rich Bayly, 1992 This thoughtful collection based on a highly successful conference held in Calgary Alberta combines the views of professional gerontologists educators health care specialists and policy makers to confront the issues affecting health care for older adults in both Canada and the United States The contributors seek not only to inform but to inspire innovative responses from the private as well as the public sector Experts in government aging medicine public administration social service counseling and consulting focus their attention on vital areas of concern to elders who are in need of assistance to the providers of these services and to a public who seeks assurance that its resources are cost effectively allocated to meet present and future demand Included are essays on the current status of health care policy in the United States and Canada daily money management caring for the noncompliant elder long term care as an emerging women's issue lobbying government agencies and political leaders the role of gerontology in resolving the crisis of long term care and geriatrics

Community Care for an Aging Society Carole B. Cox, 2004-11-23 Most older persons desire to remain living in the community but those requiring care are often at risk of not having their needs met Families may find themselves unable to care for their older relatives while formal services are often unavailable or inaccessible Policies and services are beginning to focus on the community rather than institutions as the primary axis for care This book examines the many factors contributing to needs for care among older persons as well as the ways in which impairments are defined and responded to by both the individual and society Focusing on practice and policy issues Dr Cox describes many of the early stage community care innovations that hold the promise of making contributions to the well being and independence of the older population

Long-term Care in an Aging Society Gerald A. Larue, Rich Bayly, 1992 This thoughtful collection based on a highly successful conference held in Calgary Alberta combines the views of professional gerontologists educators health care specialists and policy makers to confront the issues affecting health care for older adults in both Canada and the United States. The contributors seek not only to inform but to inspire innovative responses from the private as well as the public sector. Experts in government, aging, medicine, public administration, social service, counseling, and consulting focus their attention on vital areas of concern to elders who are in need of assistance to the providers of these services and to a public who seeks assurance that its resources are cost effectively allocated to meet present and future demand. Included are essays on the current status of health care policy in the United States and Canada, daily money management, caring for the noncompliant elder, long term care as an emerging women's issue, lobbying government agencies and political leaders, the role of gerontology in resolving the crisis of long term care and geriatrics.

Long-Term Care in an Aging Society Rowles, 2014-02-01. Written by well known scholars and researchers, LONG TERM CARE IN AN AGING SOCIETY 1st Edition approaches some of the most complex issues in the industry such as fluidity between levels of care, the impact of technology, cultural diversity, tensions between voluntary and paid services, and much more. Modes of care discussed include family and community based home care, adult day services, supportive residential and assisted living environments, mental health facilities, and medical settings including nursing homes and hospice. Blending theory with empirical research and current practice, LONG TERM CARE IN AN AGING SOCIETY 1st Edition takes a hard look at the fragmented and evolving long term care system today, reinforcing student understanding with chapter goals and reviews, website listings, suggested projects, and case examples.

Sustainable Health and Long-Term Care Solutions for an Aging Population Fong, Ben, Ng, Artie, Yuen, Peter, 2017-06-30. Lasting healthcare for the entire population, specifically the elderly, has become a main priority in society. It is imperative to find ways to boost the longevity of healthcare services for all users. Sustainable Health and Long Term Care Solutions for an Aging Population is a pivotal reference source featuring the latest scholarly research on issues pertinent to health cost and finding effective ways of financing healthcare for the elderly. An Aging Society United States. General Accounting Office, 1986. Health Care for an Aging Population Chris Hackler, 1994-01-01. Pivoting on Daniel Callahan's proposal to withhold publicly funded life prolonging medical care from the very old in his 1989 Setting Limits: Medical Goals in an Aging Society, 14 essays consider the health care crisis looming early in the next century as the baby boomers reach retirement age. They discuss the role of the aged in society, what the old and young deserve of each other, the source of medical cost increases, implications of rationing according to age, and proposals for a system that will address both immediate problems and long term conditions. Long-Term Care in Emerging Asia Vasoontara S. Yiengprugsawan, John Piggott, 2022-12-15 Countries are facing increasing life expectancy and a shrinking family size and in effect this may escalate demands for medical and supportive services. The role of families in providing informal care will remain important. However, the simultaneous decline in the supply of informal caregiving caused by changes in family structure and higher female labour market participation necessitate the expansion of the public role in care provision. This book analyses the challenges of long term care LTC policy development and implications from advanced LTC systems and a current trajectory in emerging economies in Asia. The book approaches the subject through comparative analysis on what works and what does not to provide insight into public policy options for sustainable LTC provision and financing mechanisms. How the countries adopt different approaches to health and social systems towards LTC development could provide important insight and perspectives into policy options in the region. This book aims at academics, policymakers and practitioners in health, social and aged care services and could also be used as a teaching resource for undergraduate students in health and social sciences and postgraduate programs in public health, epidemiology, social demography, gerontology and nursing. The book will be of interest to a wider audience not only on social and health consequences of population ageing but also health and social policy relating to older persons. Quality of Life

Improvement: Smart Approaches for the Working and Aging Populations Sabina Baraković, Zahid Akhtar, Jasmina Baraković Husic, 2024-03-19 Quality of life (QoL) is a broad concept that has many definitions and meanings depending on the context under consideration. It can be perceived as the overall enjoyment of life and a multidimensional concept which emphasizes the self-perceptions of an individual's current state of mind which is affected in a complex way by the person's physical health, psychological state, personal beliefs, social relationships and their relationship to salient features of their environment. On the other hand, demographic data suggests an increased need for workers worldwide and a rapid aging trend in the active workforce as well as in general. This trend of workforce deficit and population aging will be even more prominent in the future. Therefore, in order to have and sustain a healthy, motivated and productive workforce but also healthy independent and active elderly adults, one must improve their QoL and vice versa. Improving QoL will improve general public health and in turn create communities who can contribute in diverse and positive ways to both promote and sustain health for future generations.
