The Greeks made and dyed their own clothing at home. They wore simple clothing which helped keep them cool during the hot summers.

The women wore a tunic known as a peplos. It was a full-length garment that was draped and pinned at the shoulder. A long, full garment known as a chiton was also worn.

The Greeks made coins mostly using silver, though they sometimes used gold, electrum, copper alloy and bronze. The metals were melted and then poured into molds.

One of the most famous designs of all is the owl of Athena. It appears on the silver tetradrachm coins of Athens. Athena was the patron of the city and appeared on the reverse side of the coin. It was the largest coin of its time.
