Nineteenth Century Southern Fiction:

Nineteenth-Century Southern Literature J. V. Ridgely, 2021-12-14 Few inhabitants of the South in 1800 thought of it as a region or of themselves as southerners In time the need to defend the entire southern way of life became obsessive for many writers too often precluding efforts at originality in form or style Especially after the publication of Uncle Tom's Cabin southern identity and southern nationalism emerged as the grand themes and literature became subservient to regional interests The devastation of the Civil War and the collapse of the Confederacy instead of pointing southern writers in new directions only intensified their preoccupation with a now dead past The popular genres of the time historical romance and local color writing became tools to voice this preoccupation and have been important influences on America's view of the South and on American literature in general The myth of the idyllic plantation South has had an extraordinary pervasiveness in the American consciousness J V Ridgely speculates on the ways in which this tarnished but durable myth helped to produce the powerful Southern Renaissance of the twentieth century in this concise survey of the literature of America's most distinctive region during a crucial formative period Nineteenth-century Southern Fiction John Caldwell Guilds, 1970

Nineteenth-Century Southern Women Writers Melissa Heidari, Brigitte Zaugg, 2019-08-12 The essays in this book explore the role of Grace King's fiction in the movement of American literature from local color and realism to modernism and show that her work exposes a postbellum New Orleans that is fragmented socially politically and linguistically In her introduction Melissa Walker Heidari examines selections from King's journals and letters as views into her journey toward a modernist aesthetic what King describes in one passage as the continual voyage I made Sirpa Salenius sees King's fiction as a challenge to dominant conceptualizations of womanhood and a reaction against female oppression and heteronormativity In his analysis of An Affair of the Heart Ralph J Poole highlights the rhetoric of excess that reveals a social satire debunking sexual and racial double standards Ineke Bockting shows the modernist aspects of King's fiction through a stylistic analysis which explores spatial temporal biological psychological social and racial liminalities Fran oise Buisson demonstrates that King's writing is inspired by the Southern oral tradition but goes beyond it by taking on a theatrical dimension that can be quite modern and even experimental at times Kathie Birat claims that it is important to underline King's relationship to realism for the metonymic functioning of space as a signifier for social relations is an important characteristic of the realist novel St phanie Durrans analyzes The Story of a Day as an incest narrative and focuses on King's development of a modernist aesthetics to serve her terrifying investigation into social ills as she probes the inner world of her silent character Amy Doherty Mohr explores intersections between regionalism and modernism in public and silenced histories as well as King's treatment of myth and mobility Brigitte Zaugg examines in The Little Convent Girl King's presentation of the figure of the double and the issue of language as well as the narrative voice which she argues definitely inscribes the text with its understatement economy and quiet symbolism in the modernist tradition Miki Pfeffer closes the collection with an afterword

in which she offers excerpts from King's letters as encouragement for scholars to seek Grace King as a primary source arguing that Grace King's own words seem best able to dialogue with the critical readings herein Each of these essays enables us to see King's place in the construction of modernity each illuminates the continual voyage that King made

The Intellectual in Twentieth-Century Southern Literature Tara Powell, 2012-01-09 Never in its long history has the South provided an entirely comfortable home for the intellectual In this thought provoking contribution to the field of southern studies Tara Powell considers the evolving ways that major post World War II southern writers have portrayed intellectuals from Flannery O Connor s ironic view of interleckchuls to Gail Godwin s southerners striving to feel at home in the academic world Although Walker Percy like his fellow Catholic writer O Connor explicitly rejected the intellectual label for himself he nonetheless introduced the modern novel of ideas to southern letters Powell shows by placing sympathetic non caricatured intellectuals at the center of his influential works North Carolinians Doris Betts and her student Tim McLaurin made their living teaching literature and creative writing in academia and Betts s fiction often includes dislocated academics while McLaurin s superb memoirs often funny frequently point up the limitations of the mind as opposed to the heart and the spirit Examining works by Ernest Gaines Alice Walker and Randall Kenan Powell traces the evolution of the black American literacy narrative from a stress on the post Emancipation conviction which saw formal education as an essential means of resisting oppression to the growing suspicion in the post civil rights era of literacy acts that may estrange educated blacks from the larger black community Powell concludes with Godwin who embraces university life in her fiction as she explores what it means to be a southern female intellectual in the modern world a world in which all those markers inscribe isolation

The Reconstruction of White Southern Womanhood, 1865-1895 Jane Turner Censer, 2003-09-30 This impressively researched book tells the important but little known story of elite southern white women s successful quest for a measure of self reliance and independence between antebellum strictures and the restored patriarchy of Jim Crow Profusely illustrated with the experiences of fascinating women in Virginia and North Carolina it presents a compelling new chapter in the history of American women and of the South As were many ideas notions of the ideal woman were in flux after the Civil War While poverty added a harder edge to the search for a good marriage among some southern belles other privileged white women forged identities that challenged the belle model altogether Their private and public writings from the 1870s and 1880s suggest a widespread ethic of autonomy Sometimes that meant increased domestic skills born of the new reality of fewer servants But women also owned and transmitted property worked for pay and even pursued long term careers Many found a voice in a plethora of new voluntary organizations and some southern women attained national celebrity in the literary world creating strong and capable heroines and mirroring an evolving view toward northern society Yet even as elite southern women experimented with their roles external forces and contradictions within their position were making their unprecedented attitudes and achievements socially untenable During the 1890s however virulent racism and pressures to recreate a mythic South left these women caught between the revived image of the southern belle and the emerging emancipated woman Just as the memoirs of southern white women have been key to understanding life during the Civil War the writings of such women unlock the years of dramatic change that followed Informed by myriad primary documents Jane Turner Censer immerses us in the world of postwar southern women as they rethought and rebuilt themselves their families and their region during a brief but important period of relative freedom

Cavaliers and Economists Katharine A. Burnett, 2019-05-15 Offering a compelling intervention in studies of antebellum writing Katharine A. Burnett's Cavaliers and Economists: Global Capitalism and the Development of Southern Literature 1820-1860 examines how popular modes of literary production in the South emerged in tandem with the region's economic modernization In a series of deeply historicized readings Burnett positions southern literary form and genre as existing in dialogue with the plantation economy's evolving position in the transatlantic market before the Civil War The antebellum southern economy comprised part of a global network of international commerce driven by a version of laissez faire liberal capitalism that championed unrestricted trade and individual freedom to pursue profit Yet the economy of the U S South consisted of large scale plantations that used slave labor to cultivate staple crops including cotton Each individual plantation functioned as a racially and socially repressive community a space that seemingly stood apart from the international economic networks that fueled southern capitalism For writers from the South fiction became a way to imagine the region as socially and culturally progressive while still retaining hallmarks of traditional southern culture namely plantation slavery in the context of a rapidly changing global economy Burnett excavates an elaborate network of transatlantic literary exchange operating concurrently with the region's economic expansion in which southern writers adopted popular British genres such as the historical romance and the seduction novel as models for their own representations of the U S South Each chapter focuses on a different genre pairing largely understudied southern texts with well known British works Ranging from the humorous sketch to the imperial adventure tale and the social problem novel Cavaliers and Economists reveals how southern writers like Augusta Jane Evans Johnson Jones Hooper Maria McIntosh William Gilmore Simms and George Tucker reworked familiar literary forms to reinvent the South through fiction By considering the intersection of economic history and literary genre Cavaliers and Economists provides an expansive study of the means by which authors created southern literature in relation to global free market capitalism showing that in the process they renegotiated and rejustified the institution of slavery

Desire,

Violence, and Divinity in Modern Southern Fiction Gary M. Ciuba, 2011-02-04 In this groundbreaking study Gary M Ciuba examines how four of the South's most probing writers of twentieth century fiction Katherine Anne Porter Flannery O'Connor Cormac McCarthy and Walker Percy expose the roots of violence in southern culture Ciuba draws on the paradigm of mimetic violence developed by cultural and literary critic Ren Girard who maintains that individual human nature is shaped by the desire to imitate a model Mimetic desire may lead in turn to rivalry cruelty and ultimately community sanctioned and sometimes ritually sanctified victimization of those deemed outcasts Ciuba offers an impressively broad intellectual discussion that gives universal cultural meaning to the southern experience of desire violence and divinity with which these four authors wrestled and out of which they wrote In a comprehensive analysis of Porter's semiautobiographical Miranda stories Ciuba focuses on the prescribed role of women that Miranda imitates and ultimately escapes O'Connor's The Violent Bear It Away reveals three characters whose scandalous animosity caused by religious rivalry leads to the unbearable stumbling block of violence McCarthy's protagonist in Child of God Lester Ballard appears as the culmination of a long tradition of the sacred violence of southern religion twisted into his own bloody faith And Percy's The Thanatos Syndrome brings Ciuba's discussion back to the victim in Tom Moore's renunciation of a society in which scapegoating threatens to become the foundation of a new social regime From nostalgia for the old order to visions of a utopian tomorrow these authors have imagined the interrelationship of desire antagonism and religion throughout southern history Ciuba's insights offer new ways of reading Porter O'Connor McCarthy and Percy as well as their contemporaries who inhabited the same culture of violence violence desired dreaded denied and deified
