From Empires to NGOs in the West African Sahel Gregory Mann,2014-12-29 This book looks beyond the familiar history of former empires and new nation states to consider newly transnational communities of solidarity and aid social science and activism Shortly after independence from France in 1960 the people living along the Sahel a long thin stretch of land bordering the Sahara became the subjects of human rights campaigns and humanitarian interventions Just when its states were strongest and most ambitious the postcolonial West African Sahel became fertile terrain for the production of novel forms of governmental rationality realized through NGOs The roots of this nongovernmentality lay partly in Europe and North America but it flowered paradoxically in the Sahel This book is unique in that it questions not only how West African states exercised their new sovereignty but also how and why NGOs ranging from CARE and Amnesty International to black internationalists began to assume elements of sovereignty during a period in which it was so highly valued farming national liberation movements etc Bibliography pp 417 to 426 references and statistical tables Rural Migration In Developing Nations Calvin Goldscheider, 2019-07-11 What is the relationship between migration and rural social structure How does the selective movement out of rural areas affect the economic and social conditions of migrants their families and their places of origin Addressing these and other questions the contributors to this book consider rural migration patterns in the context of social change and economic development in three less developed nations Korea Sri Lanka and Mali Through comparative analysis the authors reveal both the diversity and the cross national similarities of rural migration offering theoretical bases for its interpretation and pointing to policy implications for developing areas The Cambridge History of Africa J. D. Fage, Roland Anthony Oliver, Michael Crowder, 1975 The eighth and final volume of The Cambridge History of Africa covers the period 1940-75 It begins with a discussion of the role of the Second World War in the political decolonisation of Africa Its terminal date of 1975 coincides with the retreat of Portugal the last European colonial power in Africa from its possessions and their accession to independence The fifteen chapters which make up this volume examine on both a continental and regional scale the extent to which formal transfer of political power by the European colonial rulers also involved economic social and cultural decolonisation A major theme of the volume is the way the African successors to the colonial rulers dealt with their inheritance and how far they benefited particular economic groups and disadvantaged others The contributors to this volume represent different disciplinary traditions and do not share a single theoretical perspective on the recent history of the continent a subject that is still the occasion for passionate debate The African Poor John Iliffe, 1987-12-25 This history of the poor of Sub Saharan Africa begins in the monasteries of thirteenth century Ethiopia and ends in the South African resettlement sites of the 1980s Its thesis derived from histories of poverty in Europe is that most very poor Africans have been individuals incapacitated for labour bereft of support and unable to fend for themselves in a land rich economy There has emerged the distinct poverty of those excluded from access to productive resources Natural disaster brought widespread destitution but as a cause of mass mortality it was almost eliminated in the colonial era to return to those areas where drought has been compounded by administrative breakdown Professor Iliffe investigates what it was like to be poor how the poor sought to help themselves how their counterparts in other continents live The poor live as people rather than merely parading as statistics Famines have alerted the world to African poverty but the problem itself is ancient Its prevailing forms will not be understood until those of earlier periods are revealed and trends of change are identified This is a book for all concerned with the future of Africa as well as for students of poverty elsewhere
