Narratives and Imaginings of Citizenship in Latin America Cristina Rojas,Judy

Metzler,2016-01-08 This book looks at how citizenship has been imagined and transformed in Latin America through the twentieth and early twenty first centuries from different disciplinary perspectives including anthropology history urban planning geography and political studies It looks beyond citizenship as a formal legal status to explore how ideas about citizenship have shaped political and historical landscapes in different ways through the region It shows how conceptions of citizenship are intertwined with understandings of natural spaces and environments how indigenous politics are de colonizing western liberal conceptions of citizenship and how citizenship is being transformed through local level politics and projects for development In addition to showcasing some of the novel emerging forms of citizenship in the region the book also traces the ways in which historical narratives of citizenship and national belonging persist within present day politics Collectively the chapters show that citizenship remains an important entry point for understanding politics projects of reform and struggles for transformation in Latin America This book was published as a special issue of Citizenship Studies

Citizenships, Contingency and the Countryside Gavin Parker, 2003-08-29 Citizenships Contingency and the Countryside defines citizenship in relation to the rural environment The book expands and explores a widened conceptualization of citizenship and sets out a range of examples where citizenship at different scales has been expressed in and over the rural environment Part of the analysis includes a review of the political construction and use of citizenship rhetoric over the past 20 years alongside an historical and theoretical discussion of citizenship and rights in the British countryside The text concludes with a call to recognise and incorporate the multiple voices and interests in decision making that all affect the British countryside A Report of Cooperative Extension Work in Agriculture and Home Economics in ..., 1944 Fairness and Competence in Citizen Participation Ortwin Renn, Thomas Webler, Peter Wiedemann, Peter M. Wiedemann, 1995-10-31 A vital issue facing the citizens and governments of modern democracies is the direct participation of the public in the solution of environmental problems Governments are increasingly experimenting with approaches that give citizens a greater say in the environmental debate Fairness and Competence in Citizen Participation addresses a crucial question How can we measure the performance of the citizen participation process A novel approach to the problem is taken by viewing public participation as an act of communication Drawing on Jürgen Habermas Critical Theory of Communication a normative framework is developed around the central area of citizen participation and competence in knowledge verification A milestone on the road of citizen participation and applied critical theory the book provides a sound theoretical and methodological basis for the systematic evaluation of models for environmental discourse Eight models of citizen participation are studied from North America and Europe Each model is evaluated and criticized in paired chapters written by prominent scholars Audience Planners and citizens alike will find pragmatic advice in the evaluations Housing and Planning References, 1983 Publication Catalog of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare United States.
