Planning In The Uk Agendas For The New Millennium:

Planning in the UK Andy Thornley, 2018-10-24 This title was first published in 2003 The advent of the Labour government in 1997 provoked major change in the political landscape of the UK Priorities changed and different themes moved to the top of the agenda such as local democracy community transparency sustainability and co ordinated or joined up thinking Many of the new priorities such as community empowerment involved a reappraisal of the purpose and procedures of planning while others changed the legislative and institutional frame within which planning operated This indispensable volume traces and analyzes the implications for planning created by this political shift Presenting an overview of the general debates on contemporary UK planning the book proceeds to identify four major areas as key themes for planning in the third millennium These are the new institutional context ensuring social inclusion and participation promoting sustainability and the debate over building at higher densities on Brownfield sites Illustrated with in depth case studies the book provides a timely and important examination of the current state of planning in the UK and suggests best case scenarios for the future

Planning in the UK Yvonne Rydin, Andy Thornley, 2002 Urban and Environmental Planning in the UK Yvonne Rydin, 2003-04-07 The second edition of this innovative introduction to urban and environmental planning combines comprehensive coverage of institutions and procedures with detailed analysis of the economic and political context of planning its historical development and competing theoretical approaches Extensively revised and updated to take account of changes in the context and content of planning into New Labour s second term extensive use is made throughout of case studies summary charts and exhibits to bring the subject to life Planning in a Global Era Andy Thornley, 2017-03-02 Globalization was the buzzword of the last decade Advances in communication technology computing and air travel have all contributed to the establishment of what has been referred to as a network society that encompasses the globe Such arguments clearly have a significance on planning an activity which has been concerned with controlling and shaping the use of space This volume brings together contributions from across the world in order to address some of the questions that arise from such global changes The opening section addresses the globalization debate directly raising some theoretical issues and exploring the planning implications across a range of world cities This is followed by an exploration of the way the theoretical debate about planning may need to advance to encompass contemporary forces A number of more specific accounts addressing the need for adaptation are offered The final section focuses on two aspects housing and sustainability which persist as wicked problems and are likely to remain at the top of the agenda in the third millennium The New Spatial Planning Graham Haughton, Philip Allmendinger, David Counsell, Geoff Vigar, 2009-12-04 Spatial planning strongly advocated by government and the profession is intended to be more holistic more strategic more inclusive more integrative and more attuned to sustainable development than previous approaches In what the authors refer to as the New Spatial Planning there is a fairly rapidly evolving maturity and sophistication in how strategies are developed and produced Crucially the authors argue that the reworked boundaries of spatial planning means that to understand it we need to look as much outside the formal system of practices of planning as within it Using a rich empirical resource base this book takes a critical look at recent practices to see whether the new spatial planning is having the kinds of impacts its advocates would wish Contributing to theoretical debates in planning state restructuring and governance it also outlines and critiques the contemporary practice of spatial planning This book will have a place on the shelves of researchers and students interested in urban regional studies politics and planning studies
