Point by Point Method for Comparison (or Contrast) Essay

I. Introduction ending with thesis statement that reveals how both are similar

II. Topic sentence with specific point of comparison #1 (choose a single focus (that falls under your thesis) for this paragraph)

a. Fact about work #1 (remember that facts should be specific and documented)

1. Explanation of this fact's importance to work #1

2. Explanation of this fact's importance to work #1

b. Fact about work #2 (this fact should be an "answer" or similar idea to the fact you chose from work #1; should also be specific and documented)

1. Explanation of how this similarity is meaningful

2. Further explanation of how the similarity is meaningful

c. Summary/transition sentence

Notes:

- Your assignment calls for you to COMPARE (find similarities between) two works. However, this outline can work just as easily to CONTRAST two works (see sample essay).
- This outline closely resembles eight-sentence format (with concrete details and commentary). While your paragraphs are not required to have exactly eight sentences, please keep in mind that effective writing does not list facts or jump from idea to idea without explanation. You can add all the explanation you want to a paper, but listing facts is not generally an effective technique for literary analysis.
- Similarly, this outline shows a skeleton of how a well-organized paragraph should look. As a sophisticated writer, you can go beyond what this outline contains. Presenting less than this basic outline would, however, most likely result in a paper that is poorly developed and/or organized.

Tips:

- Always refer to the older work first (work #1). By putting this first each time, your paper stays organized. Also, since it existed first, it is correct to say the newer work is similar to/different from the original work.
- Be sure to choose issues that are meaningful to discuss. You will have trouble writing anything insightful if the similarities you have chosen are not important.

This sample contrast essay follows eight-sentence, point by point format. Note the use of transition words to enhance the sophistication and flow of the essay.

Bold= Thesis, topic, summary, and concluding sentences

Italic= Concrete details (yours should be cited evidence from literature)

Plain type= Introduction and commentary
