Francisco de Goya, The Family of Philip IV (1689), oil on canvas, Madrid, Spain. The painting is a portrait of the royal family of Philip IV, showing the king, queen, and their children. The composition is a group portrait, with the figures arranged in a domestic interior. The king is seated on the left, and the queen is seated on the right. The children are standing between them. The painting is a masterpiece of 18th-century Spanish portraiture, showing the family in a more intimate and domestic setting than previous royal portraits. The style is characterized by its realism and the use of light and shadow to create a sense of depth and volume. The painting is a key work of the Spanish Enlightenment, reflecting the ideas of the time about the role of the monarchy and the family.
