Risk Analysis In Forest Management:

Risk Analysis in Forest Management Klaus von Gadow,2013-06-29 Due to the long term planning horizons and the great variety of natural economic and operational hazards affecting forest ecosystems uncertainty and multiple risk are typical aspects of forest management Applications of risk analysis are surprisingly rare in spite of the rich assortment of sophisticated forest planning tools that are available today The objective of this particular volume within the book series Managing Forest Ecosystems is to present state of the art research results concepts and techniques regarding the assessment and evaluation of natural hazards and the analysis of risk and uncertainty relating to forest management Various aspects of risk analysis are covered including examples of specific modelling tools The book is divided into three sections covering ecological perspectives applications in engineering and planning and methods applicable to economics and policy

Risk Analysis in Forest Management Klaus Von Gadow,2014-09-01     A Computer Simulation of Risk Analysis in Forest Management Planning Kim Camery Millick,1982     Computer Applications in Sustainable Forest Management Guofan Shao,Keith M. Reynolds,2006-09-27 This book is the most comprehensive and up to date treatment of computer applications in forestry It is the first text on software for forest management to emphasize integration of computer applications It also offers important new insights on how to continue advancing computational technologies in forest management The authors are internationally recognized authorities in the subjects presented     Decision Support for Forest Management Annika Kangas,Mikko Kurttila,Teppo Hujala,Kyle Eyvindson,Jyrki Kangas,2015-10-27 This updated and expanded second edition adds the most recent advances in participatory planning approaches and methods giving special emphasis to decision support tools usable under uncertainty The new edition places emphasis on the selection of criteria and creating alternatives in practical multi criteria decision making problems     Multiresource Management of Ponderosa Pine Forests W. European Forest Policy and Governance Filip Aggestam,2024-11-29 This book provides a state of the art overview covering distinct and relevant aspects of forest policy processes in Europe presenting a fresh perspective on different analytical approaches theories and frameworks Set against the background of a changing world driven by significant social environmental and economic developments in Europe and elsewhere there is a growing need for an improved understanding of forest governance and how to analyse the forest policymaking processes This book introduces the reader to some of the key issues typically encountered in reviewing proposed as well as established forest policies focusing on five socially relevant topics for the forest based sector today namely European forest governance under a green new deal Systemic changes and the circular bio economy Social changes connected with forest ownership and forest actors Nature conservation and the pursuit of multifunctional forests Living with forest fires and climate change In so doing this book presents a set of timely and rich case studies relevant to the study of forest governance In the final chapter it puts forward an innovative and systematic method for selecting the most appropriate analytical tool that accounts for the constraints and objectives involved in monitoring forest policy The book is accompanied by chapter level exercises and online Support Material which details the various approaches theories and frameworks discussed in the book providing direct links back to individual chapters discussion points and a step by step guide for how each method can be applied This book will be an essential read for forestry students and scholars and professionals and policymakers working on forest policy and forest management

General Technical Report RM. ,1989      General Technical Report PNW-GTR ,1987      Wildfire Risk Wade E. Professor Martin,Carol Professor Raish,Brian Professor Kent,2010-09-30 The continuing encroachment of human settlements into fire prone areas and extreme fire seasons in recent years make it urgent that we better understand both the physical and human dimensions of managing the risk from wildfire Wildfire Risk follows from our awareness that increasing public knowledge about wildfire hazard does not necessarily lead to appropriate risk reduction behavior Drawing heavily upon health and risk communication and risk modeling the authors advance our understanding of how individuals and communities respond to wildfire hazard They present results of original research on the social economic and psychological factors in responses to risk discuss how outreach and education can influence behavior and consider differences among ethnic racial groups and between genders with regard to values views and attitudes about wildfire risk They explore the role of public participation in risk assessment and mitigation as well as in planning for evacuation and recovery after fire Wildfire Risk concludes with a dedicated section on risk modeling with perspectives from decision sciences geography operations research psychology experimental economics and other social sciences      Advances in Threat Assessment and Their Application to Forest and Rangeland Management John M. Pye,2010 In July 2006 more than 170 researchers and managers from the United States Canada and Mexico convened in Boulder Colorado to discuss the state of the science in environmental threat assessment This two volume general technical report compiles peer reviewed papers that were among those presented during the 3 day conference Papers are organized by four broad topical sections Land Air and Water Fire and Pests Biota and are divided into syntheses and case studies Land topics include discussions of forest land conversion and soil quality as well as investigations of species responses to climate change Air and water topics include discussions of forest vulnerability to severe weather and storm damage modeling Fire topics include discussions of wildland arson and wildfire risk management as well as how people perceive wildfire risk and uncertainty Pests biota topics include discussions of risk mapping and probabilistic risk assessments as well as investigations of individual threats including the southern pine beetle and Phytophthora alni Ultimately this publication will foster exchange and collaboration between those who develop knowledge and tools for threat assessment and those who are responsible for managing forests and rangelands      Land Degradation and Forest Management Gopal Shukla,Arun Jyoti Nath, Sumit Chakravarty,Pankaj Panwar, Ajay Sharma,2025-01-06 Land degradation meaning any reduction or loss in the biological or economic productive capacity of the land resource base is a global problem Land water and forest resources can become degraded due to poor and often short sighted management In this context land degradation neutrality LDN is an approach that counterbalances the expected loss of productive land with the restoration of degraded areas Forests are a major land use cover that covers about 30 per cent of the land on Earth and thus hold great potential to help not only achieve LDN but also make Sustainable Development Goals SDGs a reality This Research Topic will focus on forest management and restoration for achieving land degradation neutrality The topic will focus on the various drivers of degradation such as deforestation climate change forest ecosystem fragmentation invasive species etc as well as the management and restoration approaches that would help achieve land degradation neutrality These approaches may include reforestation and afforestation natural regeneration agroforestry enrichment planting protected areas invasive species management etc Other approaches are the promotion of private sector engagement and carbon markets larger government subsidies and other financial support for forestry and forest management activities

Environmental Information Management And Analysis W K Michener,J W Brunt,S G Stafford,1994-08-08 Most environmental studies are based upon data collected at fine spatial scales plots sediments cores etc Furthermore temporal scales of these studies have been relatively short days weeks months and few studies have exceeded three years duration the typical funding cycle Despite this history environmental scientists are now being called upon to extrapolate findings from plot level studies to broader spatial scales and from short term studies to longer temporal scales up to decades for questions related to long term processes such as global warming and the rise in sea level The complex questions being addressed internationally require that scientists take advantage of new technologies including remote sensing geographic information systems GIS and powerful climatic and environmental simulation models As more environmental scientists begin to work at these broader spatial and temporal scales and to utilize many of the newer technologies they are recognising a whole new class of problems This book aims to address the most pertinent issues and includes a comprehensive review of selected topics case studies and theoretical discussions divided into seven sections each preceded by a brief introduction Angeles, Cleveland, Los Padres, San Bernardino National Forests (N.F.), Revised Land Management Plans ,2005 Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2011 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies,2010 Climate Extremes and Their Implications for Impact and Risk Assessment Jana Sillmann,Sebastian Sippel,Simone Russo,2019-11-19 Climate extremes often imply significant impacts on human and natural systems and these extreme events are anticipated to be among the potentially most harmful consequences of a changing climate However while extreme event impacts are increasingly recognized methodologies to address such impacts and the degree of our understanding and prediction capabilities vary widely among different sectors and disciplines Moreover traditional climate extreme indices and large scale multi model intercomparisons that are used for future projections of extreme events and associated impacts often fall short in capturing the full complexity of impact systems Climate Extremes and Their Implications for Impact and Risk Assessment describes challenges opportunities and methodologies for the analysis of the impacts of climate extremes across various sectors to support their impact and risk assessment It thereby also facilitates cross sectoral and cross disciplinary discussions and exchange among climate and impact scientists The sectors covered include agriculture terrestrial ecosystems human health transport conflict and more broadly covering the human environment nexus The book concludes with an outlook on the need for more transdisciplinary work and international collaboration between scientists and practitioners to address emergent risks and extreme events towards risk reduction and strengthened societal resilience Provides an overview about past present and future changes in climate and weather extremes and how to connect that knowledge to impact and risk assessment under global warming Presents different approaches to assess societal relevant impacts and risk of climate and weather extremes including compound events and the complexity of risk cascades and the interconnectedness of societal risk Features applications across a diversity of sectors including agriculture health ecosystem services and urban transport Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1991-10

Ecological Forest Management Jerry F. Franklin,K. Norman Johnson,Debora L. Johnson,2018-03-19 Fundamental changes have occurred in all aspects of forestry over the last 50 years including the underlying science societal expectations of forests and their management and the evolution of a globalized economy This textbook is an effort to comprehensively integrate this new knowledge of forest ecosystems and human concerns and needs into a management philosophy that is applicable to the vast majority of global forest lands Ecological forest management EFM is focused on policies and practices that maintain the integrity of forest ecosystems while achieving environmental economic and cultural goals of human societies EFM uses natural ecological models as its basis contrasting it with modern production forestry which is based on agronomic models and constrained by required return on investment Sections of the book consider 1 Basic concepts related to forest ecosystems and silviculture based on natural models 2 Social and political foundations of forestry including law economics and social acceptability 3 Important current topics including wildfire biological diversity and climate change and 4 Forest planning in an uncertain world from small privately owned lands to large public ownerships The book concludes with an overview of how EFM can contribute to resolving major 21st century issues in forestry including sustaining forest dependent societies Comprehensive analysis of disaster risk reduction and management system for agriculture in Montenegro Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2024-02-01 This report aims to highlight the current strengths of the institutional disaster risk reduction DRR system for agriculture in Montenegro as well as indicate existing gaps and capacity needs to further enhance it A comprehensive assessment was conducted which includes a general overview of the country s agriculture sector and outlines the most frequent natural hazards that are impacting the sector It is followed by an analysis of the existing legal policy and institutional structure and discusses various components of the system including the functioning of early warning systems assessments of disaster risks post disaster needs assessments including damages and losses assessments and the availability of agricultural insurance for farmers It concludes by providing recommendations for capacity building interventions to strengthen the current system to reduce the adverse impacts of natural hazards in particular floods landslides and droughts and climate change on agriculture in Montenegro
