The Russian Empire Andreas Kappeler, 2014-08-27 The national question and how to impose control over its diverse ethnic identities has long posed a problem for the Russian state This major survey of Russia as a multi ethnic empire spans the imperial years from the sixteenth century to 1917 with major consideration of the Soviet phase It asks how Russians incorporated new territories how they were resisted what the character of a multi ethnic empire was and how finally these issues related to nationalism Commissar and Mullah Glenn Roberts, 2007-05 During the revolutionary period the Soviets came into political and cultural conflict with Russia's Muslims. Despite indications that the majority of Muslims desired political unification based on their Islamic heritage, the Party divided them into separate nationalities along narrow ethnic lines incorporated most into the RSFSR and attempted to uproot traditional Islamic institutions and customs under the aegis of class war. Resistance took the form of pan-Muslim nationalism, a reformist political conception with roots in the Near East. This conflict not only aborted the export of revolution to the Islamic world, contributing to the passing of the revolutionary era in Russia, but aided Stalin's rise to power. Soviet policy succeeded politically in defining the terms of interaction between Russians and Soviet Muslims for the next 70 years but failed culturally in 1921-22 when the Party was forced to suspend its war on Islam as the price of political control.

The "Russian" Civil Wars, 1916-1926 Jonathan Smele, 2016-01-15 This volume offers a comprehensive and original analysis and reconceptualisation of the compendium of struggles that wracked the collapsing Tsarist empire and the emergent USSR, profoundly affecting the history of the twentieth century. Indeed, the reverberations of those decade-long wars echo to the present day, not despite but because of the collapse of the Soviet Union, which re-opened many old wounds from the Baltic to the Caucasus. Contemporary memorialising and de-memorialising of these wars therefore form part of the book's focus, but at its heart lie the struggles between various Russian political and military forces which sought to inherit and preserve or even expand the territory of the tsars, overlain with examinations of the attempts of many non-Russian national and religious groups to divide the former empire. The reasons why some of the latter were successful (Poland and Finland, for example) while others (Ukraine, Georgia and the Muslim Basmachi) were not are as much the author's concern as are explanations as to why the chief victors of the Russian Civil Wars were the Bolsheviks. Tellingly, the work begins and ends with battles in Central Asia, a theatre of the Russian Civil Wars that was closer to Mumbai than it was to Moscow.
