Kidwai, 1993 This collection aims at providing from the Muslim perspective a factual in depth and critical appraisal of the issues and events in the wake of the Rushdie affair It includes material not always sympathetic to Muslims from non Muslim writers The Psychology of Religious Fundamentalism Peter C. Hill, William Paul Williamson, 2005-03-31 This book presents an innovative psychological framework for understanding religious fundamentalism Blending extensive research and incisive analysis the highly regarded authors distinguish fundamentalist traditions from other faith based groups and illuminate the thinking and behavior of believers Offering respectful historically informed examinations of several major fundamentalist groups the volume challenges many commonly held stereotypes In the process it stakes out important new terrain for the psychological study of religion BOOK JACKET

Blasphemy and Freedom of Expression Jeroen Temperman, András Koltay, 2017-11-16 The tension between blasphemy laws and the freedom of expression in modern times is a key area of debate within legal academia and beyond With contributions by leading scholars this volume compares blasphemy laws within a number of Western liberal democracies and debates the legitimacy of these laws in the twenty first century Including comprehensive and up to date comparative country studies this book considers the formulation of blasphemy bans relevant jurisprudential interpretations the effect on society and the ensuing convictions and penalties where applicable It provides a useful historical analysis by discussing the legal political rationales behind the recent abolition of blasphemy laws in some Western states Contributors also consider the challenges to the tenability of blasphemy laws in a selection of well balanced theoretical chapters This book is essential reading for scholars working within the fields of human rights law philosophy and sociology of religion and comparative politics International Human Rights and Islamic Law Mashood A. Baderin, 2003-09-11 This volume examines the important question of whether or not international human rights and Islamic law are compatible It asks whether Muslim States can comply with international human rights law whilst adhering to Islamic law The traditional arguments on this subject are examined and responded to from both international human rights and Islamic legal perspectives The volume engages international human rights law in theoretical dialogue with Islamic law facilitating an evaluation of the human rights policy of modern Muslim States International Human Rights and Islamic Law formulates a synthesis between these two extremes and argues that although there are differences of scope and application there is no fundamental incompatibility between these two bodies of law Baderin argues that their differences could be better addressed if the concept of human rights were positively established from within the themes of Islamic law rather than by imposing it upon Islamic law as an alien concept Each article of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic Social and Cultural Rights as well as relevant articles of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women are analysed in the light of Islamic law The volume concludes that it is possible to harmonise the differences between international human rights law and Islamic law through the adoption of the margin of appreciation doctrine by international human rights treaty bodies and the utilization of the Islamic law doctrines of maq sid al shar ah the overall objective of Shar ah and maslahah welfare by Muslim States in their interpretation and application of Islamic law respectively Baderin asserts that Islamic law can serve as an important vehicle for the guarantee and enforcement of international human rights law in the Muslim world and the volume concludes with recommendations to that effect

'Race,' Space and Multiculturalism in Northern England Shamim Miah, Pete Sanderson, Paul Thomas, 2020-06-02 This book challenges the narrative of Northern England as a failed space of multiculturalism drawing on a historically contextualised discussion of ethnic relations to argue that multiculturalism has been more successful and locally situated than these assumptions allow The authors examine the interplay between race space and place to analyse how profound economic change the evolving nature of the state individual racism and the local creation and enactment of multiculturalist policies have all contributed to shaping the trajectory of ethnic faith identities and inter community relations at a local level In doing so the book analyses both change and continuity in discussion of and national local state policy towards ethnic relations particularly around the supposed segregation integration dichotomy and the ways in which racialised events are perceived and identities are created and reflected in state policy operations Drawing on the authors long involvement in empirical research policy and practice around ethnicity race and racism in the Northern

England they effectively support critical and situated analysis of controversial racialised issues and set these geographically specific findings in the context of wider international experiences of and tensions around growing ethnic diversity in the context of profound economic and social changes
