This remarkable book is about that war of attrition against the native mammals and birds of England and Wales from the middle ages to the present day. There is widespread knowledge about the huge declines in popular species such as song birds, farmland birds, otters, and pine martens; however, there is less understanding about the deep-rooted causes of these losses or about the complex relationship between mankind and these species. Roger Lovegrove has undertaken years of unique research by searching through parish records of vermin trapped, hunted, and killed over the generations; he has revealed an unprecedentedly accurate and detailed picture of the history of a nation's wildlife and of the often devastating impact and extinction that we have forced on our ecology. Consisting of species-by-species accounts accompanied by beautiful specially commissioned illustrations, this book outlines the history and often the future too of a wealth of wildlife species from badgers, bears, and beavers to wolves, kingfishers, the golden eagle, and the humble house sparrow. The geographical scope is British, but the subject will be of interest to conservationists around the world because of the unique historical material that will be included. The topic has enormous relevance today as public concern about the environment rises and controversies rage about hunting, wildlife management, and reintroduction of ancient species. Exit Stefan Helgesson, 2011 Preliminary Material.
