Poland labor market study-the challenge of job creation Banco Mundial, 2001 Poland Weltbank, 2013 The study reviews recent labor market developments in Poland examining the factors behind the rise in unemployment and proposing actions that should contribute to increased job creation rates Its main purpose is to inform based on research findings on the policy dialogue regarding the current labor market situation in the country Those main findings indicate that the rise in unemployment results primarily from an acceleration of job destruction that begun with the wave of enterprise restructuring in the aftermath of the Russia crisis and has persisted in part because of an imbalance in the fiscal monetary policy mix It also finds that the recent rise in unemployment has highlighted important barriers in the transition from old to new jobs These barriers include a binding minimum wage high taxes on labor income limitations in the labor code and a relatively easy access to early retirement and other social benefits Additionally the problems with the ongoing restructuring of the Polish labor market have been compounded by an increase in new labor market entrants primarily recent school graduates joining the labor force and of particular concern are the new labor market entrants with only basic vocational education or less namely in rural areas given that educational attainment is a determining factor on employment status The policy agenda needs to gradually address unemployment issues through better fiscal monetary policy mix through greater flexibility in the wage structure and through tax reductions on labor income and changes in the labor code Moreover investments in worker s education and training needs to be improved realigning the incentives under labor market programs and lowering the costs of starting and running businesses Flexibility and Security in the Labour Market Gabriela Grotkowska, Mieczyslaw W. Uzbekistan Quality Job Creation as a Cornerstone for Sustainable Economic Growth Kym Anderson, Edimon Ginting, Kiyoshi Taniguchi, 2020-06-01 Uzbekistan has achieved sustained growth through its gradual transition to a market based economy through cautious economic policy reforms Despite its gradual approach to development challenges the country experienced the smallest output decline among former Soviet economies and enjoyed high rates of economic growth from 2004 to 2015 largely driven by the high prices of its major export commodities However the drop in the global prices of many key commodities in recent years have severely impacted Uzbekistan's economy Under these circumstances the new government introduced major reforms The pace of reform is unprecedented The government has formulated its long term economic strategy in its Vision 2030 which aims to double the country's gross domestic product by 2030 through a program of economic diversification This book analyzes how Uzbekistan can boost sustainable economic growth to create more and better jobs It considers how the country can consolidate achievements from recent policy reforms and maintain reform efforts to accelerate sustainable growth Policy recommendations cover fostering macroeconomic stability increasing investment in physical infrastructure enhancing human capital improving firms access to finance and lowering barriers to international trade and foreign investment inflows

The Labour Market Impact of the EU Enlargement Floro Ernesto Caroleo,Francesco Pastore,2010-03-18 Floro Ernesto Caroleo and Francesco Pastore This book was conceived to collect selected essays presented at the session on The Labour Market Impact of the European Union Enlargements A New Regional Geography of Europe of the XXII Conference of the Italian Association of Labour Economics AIEL The session aimed to stimulate the debate on the continuity fracture of regional patterns of development and employment in old and new European Union EU regions In particular we asked whether and how different the causes of emergence and the evolution of regional imbalances in the new EU members of Central and Eastern Europe CEE are compared to those in the old EU members Several contributions in this book suggest that a factor common to all backward regions often neglected in the literature is to be found in their higher than average degree of structural change or more precisely in the hardship they experience in coping with the process of structural change typical of all advanced economies In the new EU members of CEE structural change is still a consequence of the continuing process of transition from central planning to a market economy but also of what Fabrizio et al 2009 call the second transition namely that related to the run up to and entry in the EU

Labor Market

Developments During Economic Transition Jan J. Rutkowski, 2006 The paper reviews labor market developments in the transition economies of Europe and Central Asia It argues that the scarcity of productive job opportunities and the growing labor market segmentation are the two main labor market problems facing the transition economies In the European transition economies the lack of jobs has led to persistent open unemployment In the Commonwealth of Independent States CIS it has led to hidden unemployment underemployment and low productivity employment Unemployment in the European transition economies is supported by the developed social safety net In contrast in the CIS for most workers unemployment is not an affordable option They either stick to their old unproductive jobs in unrestructured enterprises or work in the informal sector or resort to subsistence agriculture Thus underemployment in the CIS is a mirror image of unemployment in the European transition economies Accordingly the high employment to population ratios in many CIS countries do not necessarily signify favorable labor market performance Instead they often indicate delayed enterprise restructuring the maintenance of unsustainable jobs in uncompetitive firms and the existence of a large informal sector as an employer of last resort Labor market segmentation has been caused by a sharp increase in earnings differentials and the attendant increase in the incidence of low paid jobs by the polarization of regional labor market conditions and finally by the growth of the informal sector offering casual low productivity jobs Labor market segmentation and accompanying inequalities are more pronounced in the CIS than in the European transition economies World Bank web site Does Eurosclerosis Matter? Michelle Riboud, Carolina Sánchez-Páramo, Carlos Silva-Jauregui, 2002 Whether or not labor market rigidities are an important contributor to persistently high levels of unemployment remains at the center of an important debate in Europe European labor markets are often viewed as rigid and inflexible in opposition to those in North America where legislation is less protective and fosters more mobility This paper shows that the labor market policies adopted by Central and Eastern European countries aspiring to join the European Union do not appear excessively rigid However significant and wide ranging economic reform programs make it difficult to assess the impact of labor market institutions OECD Reviews of Regulatory Reform: Poland 2002 From Transition to New Regulatory Challenges OECD, 2002-07-22 OECD's review of regulatory reform in Poland
