English Communication for Social and Human Services Mary Ellen Toffle, 2017-08-31 This book gives social and human services students and professionals the opportunity to begin developing cross cultural communication skills in the English language The need to be able to communicate in English is becoming more and more obvious Social workers and other human services professionals will be working with immigrants from countries where English is the official language or at least a second language Nigeria Ghana The Gambia etc The growing numbers of English speaking immigrants are impacting the human services fields of medicine mental health social work the education systems and the legal systems all over Europe This book is based on the European Common Framework

but goes beyond a typical English language text. It focuses on the various skill sets necessary for human services professionals including important text analysis skills as well as analytical case skills. Soft skills such as interpersonal skills and expressing empathy are also presented for student reflection. Students learn the principles of cross cultural communication through Cross Cultural Text Analysis which helps them improve their English as they develop cross cultural awareness sensitivity and communication skills. Students experience different cultural linguistic contexts where they can appreciate the dynamic relationship between culture and language applied to the field of human services. For many this book will be the first step in beginning a lifetime adventure of becoming cross cultural.

Recent Advances in Visual Information Systems Shi-Kuo Chang, Zen Chen, Suh-Yin Lee, 2002-02-27 Visual information systems are information systems for visual computing Visual computing is computing on visual objects Some visual objects such as images are inherently visual in the sense that their primary representation is the visual representation Some visual objects such as data structures are derivatively visual in the sense that their primary representation is not the visual representation but can be transformed into a visual representation Images and data structures are the two extremes Other visual objects such as maps may fall somewhere in between the two Visual computing often involves the transformation from one type of visual objects into another type of visual objects or into the same type of visual objects to accomplish certain objectives such as information reduction object recognition and so on In visual information systems design it is also important to ask the following question who performs the visual computing The answer to this question determines the approach to visual computing For instance it is possible that primarily the computer performs the visual computing and the human merely observes the results It is also possible that primarily the human performs the visual computing and the computer plays a supporting role Often the human and the computer are both involved as equal partners in visual computing and there are visual interactions Formal or informal visual languages are usually needed to facilitate such visual interactions
