Developmental Disorders of the Frontostriatal System John L. Bradshaw, 2014-08-21 In this book the author discusses a range of common neurodevelopmental disorders affecting young people: autism, depression, schizophrenia, ADHD, Tourette's Syndrome, and obsessive compulsive disorder from the unique perspective of their proposed common origin in the function and dysfunction of the brain's frontostriatal system. Throughout the book the author systematically compares and contrasts them from a biological, clinical, and evolutionary standpoint, viewing them as extensions of normal personality attributes which in less extreme form may possess certain behavioural advantages explaining their persistence in the general population. The result is a unique, up-to-date and wide-ranging discussion of these disorders that draws upon biology, genetics, neuropsychology, neuropathology, neuroimaging, and clinical presentation and treatment. It will be of interest to advanced students, researchers, and practitioners in neuropsychology, neuropsychiatry, psychiatry, and clinical psychology.

Describes a consumer-oriented, stage-based model of psychological recovery which is unique in its focus on intrapersonal processes.

These consist of an accumulation of lipid-engorged macrophages, foam cells, and T and B lymphocytes in the arterial intima. With time, the fatty streaks progress to intermediate lesions composed of foam cells and smooth muscle cells.
