Memoirs Of A Terror Stricken Navy Wife:

Memoirs of a Terror Stricken Navy Wife Mary Passanisi, 2003-12 Mr Gaines enjoys traveling and had always wanted to visit his mother's homeland Ghana West Africa While growing up his mother had often told him stories about this amazing land and his wonderful relatives Mr Gaines knew that at some point in his lifetime this was a trip he would have to make He realized how fortunate he is in that he has knowledge of a direct link to his African ancestry This is unlike many African Americans whose connection to their African past was broken by the institution of slavery In the summer of 2000 he was fortunate enough to be able to finally make the journey He along with his sister and two other travel companions spent an amazing twelve days in Ghana filled with excitement and discovery This book chronicles his experiences along with those of his travel companions It also describes many of the cultural aspects of Ghana along with interesting stories about his family and how he reaches a new understanding of himself Mr Gaines warmly invites you to travel along with him and experience beauty of Ghana as he did Through this book he hopes to provoke thought laughter and introspection Memoir of
