Pilgrim's Progress Susan Copoloff-Mechanic, 1988 Hugh Hood has been called Canada's foremost writer of short stories and in this book the first complete critical work on Hood's short stories Copoloff Mechanic shows why he is the master craftsman of this genre Hood has always insisted that his short story collections should be treated as a unity as if each story were a chapter of a novel In this book the author accepts Hood's challenge and shows how his six collections to date are carefully arranged in relation to a guiding theme As Copoloff Mechanic shows the stories in each of the collections are carefully interconnected to illuminate the details of Canadian life in terms of a universal timeless drama Pilgrim's Progress Suzi Copoloff-Mechanic, 1988

The Canadian Short Story Reingard M. Nischik, 2007 Beginning in the 1890s reaching its first full realization by modernist writers in the 1920s and brought to its heyday during the Canadian Renaissance starting in the 1960s the short story has become Canada's flagship genre It continues to attract the country's most accomplished and innovative writers today among them Margaret Atwood Mavis Gallant Alice Munro Carol Shields and many others Yet in contrast to the stature and popularity of the genre and the writers who partake in it surprisingly little literary criticism and theory has been devoted to the Canadian short story This collection redresses that imbalance by providing the first collection of critical interpretations of a range of thirty well known and often anthologized Canadian short stories from the genre's beginnings through the twentieth century A historical survey of the genre introduces the volume and a timeline comparing the genre's development in Canada the US and Great Britain via representative examples completes it The collection is geared both to specialists in and to students of Canadian literature For the latter it is of particular benefit that the volume provides not only a collection of interpretations but a comprehensive introduction to the history of the Canadian short story Reingard M Nischik is professor and chair of American Literature at the University of Constance Germany
