Chamola, Jagjit Singh, 2012-12-06 The fundamental problem the world faces today is the rapidly increasing pressure of population on the limited resources of the land To meet the ever increasing demands of expanding populations agricultural production has been raised through the abundant use of inorganic fertilizers the adoption of multicropping systems and liberal application of chemical pesticides fungicides bactericides etc Though the use of chemicals has increased the yield dramatically it has also resulted in the rapid deterioration of land and water resources apart from wastage of scarce resources This has adversely affected the biological balance and lead to the presence of toxic residues in food soil and water in addition to imposing economic constraints on developing countries From the Preface Mycorrhizal Biology addresses the global problem of land degradation and the associated loss of soil productivity and decline in soil quality caused by exploitative farming practices and poor management in developing countries and the far reaching socio economic and ecological consequences of its impact on agricultural productivity and the environment In the light of a need for sustainable development a new system of productive agriculture to ensure the efficient management of agricultural
