Reflections From The Heart Of Educational Inquiry Understanding Curriculum And Teaching Through The Arts:

Reflections from the Heart of Educational Inquiry George Willis, William H. Schubert, 1991-02-19 Exquisitely refined observational technique entails that correspondingly refined thought be given to the frame upon which the observer stands. The physical issues thus encountered are immensely subtle. To the present volume nineteen experts from around the world have contributed eighteen state of the art reviews which are presented under these topical heads: Celestial reference frames, Terrestrial reference frames, Rotation of the Earth and the terrestrial and celestial frames, Relationships between frames, Time Standards. NW Thirty three essays discuss ways the arts have influenced curriculum inquiry and the teaching learning process. The first part focuses on aesthetic, epistemological, ethical, ontological and political explanations for the influence of arts or curricula. The second part offers personal accounts by scholars who have been influenced by works of art at the classroom, curricula and teaching levels. Paper edition, unseen 17 95. Understanding Curriculum William F. Pinar, 1995 Perhaps not since Ralph Tyler's 1949 Basic Principles of Curriculum and Instruction has a book communicated the field as completely as Understanding Curriculum. From historical discourses to breaking developments in feminist, poststructuralist and racial theory, including chapters on political theory, phenomenology, aesthetics, theology, international developments and a lengthy chapter on institutional concerns, the American curriculum field is here. It will be an indispensable textbook for undergraduate and graduate courses alike. Embodied Curriculum Theory and Research in Arts Education Susan W. Stinson, 2015-10-26 This collection of articles by Susan W. Stinson organized thematically and chronologically by the author reveals the evolution of the field of arts education in general and dance education in particular through narrative and critical reflections by this unique scholar and a few co-authors. It also includes contextual insights not available elsewhere. The author's pioneering embodied research work in arts and dance education continues to be relevant to researchers today. The selected chapters and articles were predominantly previously published in a variety of journals, conference proceedings and books between 1985 and the present. Each section is preceded by an introduction and the author has written a post scriptum for each article to offer a commentary or response to the article from the current perspective. Simovska, 2007-10-12 The Research in Participatory Education Network (RIPEN) was initiated by the Research Programme for Environmental and Health Education at the Danish School of Education, University of Aarhus in 2003. It embraces a broad spectrum of researchers, scholars, students and practitioners of participatory education working in or from Europe, North America, Africa and Australasia. Given the international scope of the network and the range of interests it now has as initiators and early participants in the network, the editorial team invited RIPEN to discuss what a critical perspective on participatory approaches to education might mean for education and the environment, health and sustainability and how network members might research and substantiate their claims and arguments. Following the introductory chapter on the scope of this collection 19 chapters illustrate the contributors responses to that invitation Our focus on critical perspectives was prompted by earlier work by Majid Rahnema in Wolfgang Sachs s 1992 Development Dictionary Critiquing concepts of participation in a volume that set out to stimulate cultural historical and anthropological debate on the key concepts of development Rahnema p 126 wrote Participation which is also a form of intervention is too serious and ambivalent a matter to be taken lightly or reduced to an amoeba word lacking any precise meaning or a slogan or fetish or for that matter only an instrument or methodology

Thinking about and Enacting Curriculum in "frames of War" Rahat Naqvi,Hans Smits,2012-01-01 Rahat Naqvi and Hans Smits edited collection Thinking about and Enacting Curriculum in Frames of War is centered on the theme of how the current global order creates precarious conditions for human life The contributors respond to the challenges Judith Butler posed about the fragility of life and questions about how we apprehend and take up ethically our responsibilities for those who are considered Other The overarching objective of the book is the meaning of a call to ethics and how discussion of framing and frames is a provocation to think about our responsibilities as curriculum scholars and practitioners

Teacher Personal Theorizing Gail MacCutcheon,1992-01-01 This book examines the relationship between teacher theorizing and teacher action as illustrated by the curricular and instructional practices of teachers The authors show that all teaching is guided by theory developed by the teachers Teachers could not begin to practice without some knowledge of the context of their practice and without ideas about what can and should be done in those circumstances In this sense teachers are guided by personal practical theories that structure their activities and guide them in making decisions This literature is very significant in explaining and interpreting many phenomena of schooling such as why teachers alter curriculum documents and other policies how inservice education can be improved how supervisors can help teachers to improve their practices and how administrators can become leaders to improve education This perspective has broad and specific implications for every facet of education Those interested in teacher education and development in supervision in curriculum and in administration will find it especially relevant
