The Palgrave International Handbook of Women and Outdoor Learning Tonia Gray, Denise Mitten, 2018-05-12 This Handbook serves as a starting point for critical analysis and discourse about the status of women in outdoor learning environments OLEs Women choose to participate actively in outdoors careers many believing the profession is a level playing field and that it offers alternatives to traditional sporting activities They enter outdoor learning primarily on the strength of their enthusiasm for leading and teaching in natural environments and assume the field is inclusive rewarding excellence regardless of age gender socioeconomic status disability or ethnicity However both research and collective experiences in OLEs suggest that many women feel invisible relegated marginalized and undervalued In response to this marginalization this Handbook celebrates the richness of knowledge and practices of women practitioners in OLEs Women scholars and practitioners from numerous fields such as experiential outdoor education adventure education adventure therapy and gender studies explore the implications of their research and practice using poignant examples within their own disciplines These insights emerge from similar life experiences as women and outdoor leaders in the 1970s to the present Social inequalities still abound in OLEs and the Handbook ensures that the contributions of women are highlighted as well as the work that needs to be done to make these spaces inclusive Global in perspective and capacious in content this one stop volume is an indispensable reference resource for a diverse range of academics including students and researchers in the fields of education psychology sociology gender studies geography and environment studies as well as the many outdoors fields Diploma Democracy Mark Bovens, Anchrit Wille, 2017-06-16 Lay politics lies at the heart of democracy Political offices are the only offices for which no formal qualifications are required Contemporary political practices are diametrically opposed to this constitutional ideal Most democracies in Western Europe are diploma democracies ruled by those with the highest formal qualifications Citizens with low or medium educational qualifications currently make up about 70 percent of the electorates yet they have become virtually absent from almost all political arenas University graduates have come to dominate all political institutions and venues from political parties parliaments and cabinets to organised interests deliberative settings and Internet consultations This rise of a political meritocracy is part of larger trend In the information society educational background like class or religion is an important source of social and political divides Those who are well educated tend to be cosmopolitans whereas the lesser educated citizens are more likely to be nationalists This book documents the context contours and consequences of this rise of a political meritocracy It explores the domination of higher educated citizens in political participation civil society and political office in Western Europe It discusses the consequences of this rise of a political meritocracy such as descriptive deficits policy incongruences biased standards and cynicism and distrust Also it looks at ways to remedy or at least mitigate some of the negative effects of diploma democracy Practical experiments in school science lessons and science field trips Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee,2011-09-14 This Science and Technology Committee report on practical experiments in school science lessons and science field trips concludes that many students are receiving poor practical science experiences during their secondary school education There was no credible evidence to support the frequently cited explanation of health and safety concerns for a decline in practicals and trips Instead more focus is needed on what happens after teachers have been recruited to the profession knowledge and practical skills must be maintained and developed in order for high quality science education to be delivered High quality science facilities and qualified and experienced technical support are vital A career structure for technical staff should be provided and the government should ensure schools provide science facilities to match its aspirations for science education Practical science is relatively expensive and carries little cachet for parents comparing schools The inspection regime and the requirements set for exam boards should therefore drive higher quality with more and better practical science lessons The Committee also found a lack of coherence in the provision of science educational materials It urges the science community to utilise the STEM directories the online database of STEM enhancement and enrichment activities for schools and colleges and calls on the government to secure the future of the directories which provide vital contacts between schools and scientists Finally the committee urges the government to provide a detailed strategy on how it intends to achieve its ambition to increase participation in school science subjects The Beautiful
