Veal, 2004-03-01 Globalization economic development and changes in social environments have put the relationships between work leisure social structure and quality of life under the spotlight Profound transformations in the nature and organization of work are occurring with potentially far-reaching social and economic consequences Increasingly organizations demand greater flexibility from their workforces and are introducing new technologies and practices in response to global competitive pressures At the same time many employees are experiencing long working hours increasing workloads and job insecurity along with the challenge of balancing work and domestic responsibilities These changes threaten long-term gain in leisure time while simultaneously the leisure environment is also changing radically as we see increasing commercialization and professionalization of leisure services and experiences the influence of the Internet the rise of gambling and the decline of community-based activity Exploring all of these issues this book brings together specially commissioned chapters from international experts in a wide range of disciplines concerned with work leisure and well-being Each author takes stock of the current position identifies core practical and theoretical issues and discusses possible future trends in order to provide an invaluable resource for all policy makers educators employers and researchers in the field The Politics of Evaluation David Taylor, Susan

Nixon,2015-04-23 Academic identity is continually being formed and reformed by the institutional socio cultural and political contexts within which academic practitioners operate In Europe the impact of the 2008 economic crisis and its continuing aftermath accounts for many of these changes but the diverse cultures and histories of different regions are also significant factors influencing how institutions adapt and resist and how identities are shaped Academic Identities in Higher Education highlights the multiple influences acting upon academic practitioners and documents some of the ways in which they are positioning themselves in relation to these often competing pressures At a time when higher education is undergoing huge structural and systemic change there is increasing uncertainty regarding the nature of academic identity Traditional notions compete with new and emergent ones which are still in the process of formation and articulation Academic Identities in Higher Education explores this process of formation and articulation and addresses the question what does it mean to be an academic in 21st century Europe The University Becoming Søren S. E. Bengtsen,Sarah Robinson,Wesley

Shumar,2021-06-23 This volume wholeheartedly engages with the current climate in higher education and provides not only a thorough analysis of the foundational elements constituting higher education but also a critical discussion of possible connections to societal and cultural domains and policy debates Today higher education institutions and programs are beset with multiple and often conflicting pressures and demands Higher education is regarded by societies in general and at the political level in particular as a pathway to securing continued economic growth and ensuring cultural growth in surrounding societal contexts Future academics are expected to become experts within their disciplines and at the same time to acquire and develop generic competences and transferable skills directly translatable into job market and professional contexts These conflicting and fragmented policy approaches to higher education leaves academic leaders teacher researchers and students with an incoherent curriculum and a confused and eroded academic identity and societal outlook Much literature within higher education research that engages with similar topics are dominated by a backwards looking and heavy critique of current political and educational conditions for the university and higher education This volume suggests a new tack that is defined by openness and optimism towards possibilities for a transformative higher education curriculum that at the same time stays firmly rooted within the foundational academic soil By drawing on and contributing to the emerging research field the philosophy and theory of higher education the book combines critique with a constructive and future oriented approach and outlook on higher education Further it combines and links philosophical discussions on the idea of the future university with societal responsibility and a curricular and formational awareness Tep Vol 31-N2 Teacher Education and Practice,2018-09-21 Local Ownership and Security Sector Reform Timothy Donais,2008 The notion of local ownership has emerged in recent years as part of the contemporary commonsense of security sector reform SSR While the argument that externally driven reform processes are unsustainable is now widely accepted the principle of local ownership has proven difficult to both define and operationalise With contributions by leading practitioners both insiders and outsiders Local Ownership and Security Sector Reform subjects the broader issue of local ownership to critical scrutiny furthers the debate on what local ownership is and why it matters and explores how ownership issues have played out in the context of specific SSR case studies Small Change, Big Deal Jennifer Kavanagh,2012-06-29 As we consider the plight of our consumer driven economy it is easy to forget that money is about relationship between individuals and between communities In our current financial mess it is worth reminding ourselves of community based alternatives and to look closely at microcredit a model of peer lending to enable people to move out of poverty From Bangladesh from South Africa from Ghana and from the East End of London we are given a worm s eye view of small scale work of personal transformation and the building of community Small and local is still beautiful and has much to teach us A Good Death? Simon Woods,2016-03-16 This interdisciplinary collection presents valuable discourse and reflection on the nature of a good death Bringing together a leading judge and other legal scholars philosophers social scientists practitioners and parents who present varying accounts of a good death the chapters draw from personal experience as well as policy practice and academic analysis Covering themes such as patients rights to determine their own good death considering their best interests when communication becomes difficult and the role and responsibilities of health professionals the book outlines how ethical healthcare might be achieved when dealing with assisted suicide by organizations and how end of life services in general might be improved It will be of interest to students and academics working the area of medical law and ethics as well as health professionals and policy makers Technological Choices for Sustainability Subhas K. Sikdar,Peter Glavic,Ravi Jain,2004-04-08 This book offers a critical evaluation of current scientific work on defining the issue of sustainability and on measuring progress towards a sustainable state It aims to provide a common understanding of how progress towards sustainability can be achieved by optimising technological development environmental impact and socio economic factors A further objective is to identify the major trends in methodologies that assist progress towards sustainability

Sit on Our Hands, or Stand on Our Feet? Roger Philip Abbott, 2013-01-07 The aim of Sit on Our Hands or Stand on Our Feet is not to present a theology that explains disasters In fact there is no such theology Nor is this work primarily for those who are responded to it is not part of the theological grab bag that Christian responders carry with them to use for the benefit of casualties It is more a part of the Christian s engaged practical theological apprenticeship prior to and during a response This book represents the role of the practical theologian who empowers the church community s legitimation and contribution in disaster response and who encourages individual Christians whose calling into particularly relevant professions whose natural skills and or professional training could find them placed in a major incident responding status paid or voluntary doing their work as unto the Lord It is a serious must read for any Christians who have hearts heavy with compassion but who are not sure what to do or why when disaster strikes

Human Rights in the Media Michelle Farrell, Eleanor Drywood, Edel Hughes, 2019-01-03 This collection sets about untangling some of the knotty issues in the underexplored relationship between human rights and the media We investigate how complex debates in political judicial academic and public life on the role and value of human rights are represented in the media particularly in print journalism To focus the discussion we concentrate on media representation of the controversial proposals in the United Kingdom to repeal the Human Rights Act 1998 and to replace it with a British Bill of Rights The collection is underpinned by the observation that views on human rights and on the proposals to repeal and replace are polarised On the one hand human rights are presented as threatening and therefore utterly denigrated on the other hand human rights are idolised and therefore uncritically celebrated This is the fear and fetish in our title The media plays a decisive role in constructing this polarity through its representation of political and ideological viewpoints In order to get to grips with the fear the fetish and this complex interrelationship the collection tackles key contemporary themes amongst them the proposed British Bill of Rights Brexit prisoner voting the demonisation of immigrants press freedom tabloid misreporting trial by media and Magna Carta The collection explores media representation investigates media polarity and critiques the media s role
