Wheeler, Hector R. Wong, Thomas P. Shanley, 2008-12-17 The care of the critically ill or injured child begins with timely prompt and aggressive resuscitation and stabilization Ideally stabilization should occur before the onset of organ failure in order to achieve the best possible outcomes In the following pages an international panel of experts provides an in depth discussion of the early recognition resuscitation and stabilization of the critically ill or injured child Once again we would like to dedicate this textbook to our families and to the physicians and nurses who provide steadfast care every day in pediatric intensive care units across the globe Derek S Wheeler Hector R Wong Thomas P Shanley V Preface to Pediatric Critical Care Medicine Basic Science and Clinical Evidence The field of critical care medicine is growing at a tremendous pace and tremendous advances in the understanding of critical illness have been realized in the last decade My family has directly benefited from some of the technological and scientific advances made in the care of critically ill children My son Ryan was born during my third year of medical school By some peculiar happenstance I was nearing completion of a 4 week rotation in the newborn intensive care unit NICU The head of the pediatrics clerkship was kind enough to let me have a few days off around the time of the delivery my wife Cathy was 2 weeks past her due date and had been scheduled for elective induction

Fluid Resuscitation Institute of Medicine, Committee on Fluid Resuscitation for Combat Casualties, 1999-11-05

Historically 20% of all injured combatants die on the battlefield before they can be evacuated to a field hospital Blood loss hemorrhage is the single major cause of death among those killed in action whose lives might otherwise be saved Fluid resuscitation and the treatment of hypovolemia the abnormally decreased volume of circulating fluid in the body offer the greatest opportunity for reducing mortality and morbidity associated with battlefield casualties In Fluid Resuscitation a committee of experts assess current resuscitation fluids and protocols for the treatment of combat casualties and make recommendations for future research Chapters focus on the pathophysiology of acute hemorrhagic shock experience with and complications of fluid resuscitation novel approaches to the treatment of shock protocols of care at the site of injury and future directions for research The committee explicitly describes the similarities and differences between acute medical care during combat and civilian emergency trauma care Fluid Resuscitation should help energize and focus research in both civilian and military emergency care and help save the lives of citizens and soldiers alike surgery and critical care as well as civilian and military EMS providers Care of the Critically Ill Patient J. Tinker, M. Rapin, 2013-04-17 During the past decade there has been a considerable expansion in the understanding assessment and treatment of critically ill patients An attempt to portray our present knowledge of this diverse field in a comprehensive textbook is therefore a formidable and daunting undertaking However many colleagues in different disciplines and from different countries convinced us of the need for such a work and greatly encouraged by their interest we embarked upon the project Any single text even a very long one cannot cover every aspect of critical illness Our first task was therefore to define those areas of the subject that had to be included This we did on a systematic basis and although the final emphasis of the book is very largely directed to clinical matters we felt it pertinent to include in some detail accounts of relevant physiology and technology Care of the Critically Ill Patient is divided into twelve sections each concerned with major facets of critical illness each of the sixty eight chapters includes a topical and often extensive bibliography The many chosen contributors form an international group of specialists whose combined expertise embraces the topics that we have selected
